SENATORS TO FIGHT F. D. R. BILL

'TVA' TO COVER 8 STATES GETS ROOSEVELT O. K.

Propose 'Yardstick' for Southwest.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10 (AP).—Creation of another "TVA" to be known as the Arkansas Valley authority was proposed today in identical bills introduced in the senate by Senators John E. Miller and Hattie W. Caraway [D., Ark.] and in the house by Representative Clyde T. Ellis.

Representative Ellis said the legislation was "drafted at the direction of President Roosevelt," and that the President "has indicated he will favor its immediate passage."

No definite appropriation is fixed in the bills, but the authority would be given the right to issue up to 100 million dollars in bonds to acquire existing systems.

Colorado Opposes Proposal.

Immediate opposition to the proposal was expressed by Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], who declared that he objected to it in principle and that Colorado water authorities were violently opposed to such a project.

Drafted by attorneys for a number of federal agencies, including the TVA, the measures propose a three man directorate to set up an authority to take over all dams and reservoirs of the White, St. Francis, Arkansas, and Red rivers and their tributaries in Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, and New Mexico involving a drainage area of 308,165 square miles, seven times larger than the Tennessee valley.

Proponents said the amount of the appropriation necessary to start the authority had not been determined but three new multiple purpose dam-reservoirs specifically authorized in the legislation would cost $78,000,000.

Three Big Dam Projects.

The three are the Bull shoals on the White river in Arkansas, Table rock on the White in Missouri, and the Narrows dam on the Little Missouri river in Arkansas.

"These projects would produce a tremendous amount of power," Representative Ellis said.

The authority would establish a "yardstick" rate, Ellis said, and sell its power to municipalities and cooperatives for resale at rates to be fixed on the basis of cost of producing the power.

The Arkansas Valley authority would take over the following federal government projects, all either under construction or authorized by congress:

Arkansas river basin—John Martin reservoir [Caddoa], Arkansas river, Colorado; Great Salt Plains reservoir, Salt Fork river, Oklahoma; Fort Supply reservoir, Wolf creek, Oklahoma; Canton reservoir, North Canadian river, Oklahoma; the completed Conchas reservoir, South Canadian river, New Mexico; Blue Mountain reservoir, Petit Jean river, Arkansas; Hulah reservoir, Caney river, Oklahoma, and Optima reservoir, North Canadian river, Oklahoma.

Red River Basin.

St. Francis river basin—Wappapello reservoir, St. Francis river, Missouri.

Stelle, Nearly Thru, Gives 11 More Pardons

Gov. John Stelle, who is to go out of office Monday, granted full pardons last night to 11 former convicts. He also granted a conditional pardon to another former convict and commuted the sentences of four men now in prison.

In December, Stelle also pardoned five men who fired a volley of rifle shells into the home of a deputy sheriff in Du Quoin and killed a girl 14 years old. These men were members of a miners' union.

The action yesterday followed a mass exodus from the state's prisons in November and December, a total of 391 inmates having been granted paroles by the governor's board of pardons and paroles. Many of the paroled were known to the Chicago police as crime repeaters.

Robber One of Favored.

One of the men favored by the governor yesterday is Joseph Sacrino of Louisville, Ky. Sacrino was sentenced to Joliet in 1921 for robbery, but skipped an appeal bond and became a restaurant owner in Kentucky. He was exposed last February and sent to prison. On Dec. 24 the governor granted a conditional pardon and Sacrino was freed.

Charles Borella of Perry county, who has been serving a life sentence for murder since 1923, will win immediate freedom by way of a Stelle commutation. Three other murderers who are serving 99 year terms had their terms commuted to 35 years, but will have to remain in prison for some time. They are Paul Chapman and Charles Osborne of Macoupin county and Harry Heywood of Cook county. Heywood was the owner of the notorious Green Corners roadhouse and was found guilty of shooting one of his patrons to death in 1923.

Bigamist Is Benefited.

The conditional pardon was given to Salvatore Valenza, sentenced from Chicago in 1937 to one to five years as a bigamist. It is expected to remove a threat of immigration authorities to deport Valenza to Italy. He had been paroled last spring. Stelle specified that Valenza should be responsible to the supervisor of parolees until he is finally discharged.

Those who got full pardons are all at liberty now, either as parolees or discharged convicts. One is Edward Kerstein, a Chicago undertaker, who went to Joliet in 1930 for election fraud.

CIVILIAN DEAD IN THIS WAR ALREADY EQUAL TOTALS FOR 1914-1918

New York, Jan. 10.—As many civilians already have been killed in the present European war as during the entire four years of the world war and the proportion of civilian to military fatalities is tragically higher, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company reported today.

During the world war one civilian was killed for every 75 military fatalities. Since the outbreak of hostilities in 1939, for every three military fatalities one civilian has lost his life. Already the civilian deaths in the present war exceed 100,000, as against 300,000 deaths in the armed forces.

During the world war British civilian deaths in air raids numbered 1,117. In the present conflict, up to November, 1940, Britain has reported the death of 20,000 civilians in air raids.

FIRE 3,300 MEN ON BUILDING JOB AT FORT MEADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Nearly 3,300 workers, employed in the construction of the cantonment at nearby Fort George G. Meade, Md., have been discharged in the past two weeks.

The discharges were ordered by Maj. J. A. Noxon, construction quartermaster at the fort, and followed an inspection by Lt. Col. Brehon B. Somervell, recently appointed construction quartermaster of the army.

Half of the men discharged were carpenters. Complaints had been made that union officials were giving union cards to inexperienced men in order to collect the $55 fee for initiation into the carpenters' union.

"The men who have been let go were either too lazy to produce or were physically or mentally incapable of producing," Maj. Noxon said.

Employment of men on the cantonment reached a peak of 19,000 during the Christmas season. More experienced men are needed now, it was said.

Germans Sign 'Biggest' Grain Deal with Reds

BERLIN, Jan. 10 (AP).—Germany and Russia signed a series of treaties today in Moscow including a new trade agreement designed to aid Germany's war effort and "involving many billions of marks," it was officially announced.

Other agreements recognized trade deals which Germany previously had signed with the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia, which now are absorbed by the soviet union, and provided for the regulation of border and population resettlement problems.

Long Negotiations.

The official German news agency DNB said the trade agreement included the "greatest grain deal in history" and had been worked out so carefully on the basis of a scientific study of the capacities of the two countries that the transaction could be called "an economic plan" as well as a deal.

Negotiations have been under way since last October, based on treaties signed Feb. 11, 1940. Under the terms of the new treaty regulating commerce between the two countries until Aug. 1, 1942, Germany will provide Russia with an expanded list of manufactured items such as industrial machinery in return for petroleum, ores, cotton, naphtha products, and various foodstuffs, particularly grain.

"Enlarged Agreement"—Russia.

MOSCOW, Jan. 10 (AP).—Russia agreed today to send to Germany quantities of food, especially grains, in a significant collaboration officially described as "an enlarged economic agreement."

Tass, official Russian news agency, said the new agreement "constitutes a further stage in the execution of the economic program outlined by the two governments in 1939."

It said the negotiations "passed in the spirit of mutual understanding and confidence conforming to the friendly relations existing between the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

A repatriation accord signed at the same time was expected to return to the reich 40,000 Germans in Lithuania, and 10,000 in Latvia and Estonia.

Hear Reds Seek Argentine Pact.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 10 (AP). — Informed sources reported tonight that a soviet trade mission was en route here to negotiate a "giant trade agreement" based mainly on the export of Argentine grain to Russia.

U. S. MAY GIVE UP LUXURIES TO AID IN WAR: HOPKINS

Roosevelt Puts Arms First, Britain Told.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal envoy, told British newspaper men today, according to the Daily Telegraph, that the President would not hesitate to adopt powers to deprive America of luxury commodities if their production interfered with the output of war materials.

The newspaper said Hopkins indicated the production of such commodities need not necessarily interfere with the war effort, but assured British questioners at a press conference which followed a three hour luncheon discussion of matters of "mutual urgency" with Prime Minister Winston Churchill that:

"We would not hesitate to take the powers to avoid any such interference."

Tells Americans: 'No Comment.'

He also told the British reporters, the newspaper said, that the United States realized it would not be able to carry on business as usual.

Earlier he replied, "no comment" to most questions asked by American correspondents and refused to reveal the nature of the information which President Roosevelt is seeking regarding the British war effort, their needs and intentions, or the promises, if any, which he was to make on behalf of the President.

He predicted, however, that production of war materials in the United States would reach its peak in about another year, and declared:

"I have no misgivings about the outcome of this war. There is going to be a united and altogether successful effort in the production of defense materials to be used by ourselves, Great Britain, Greece, and China."

Will Tour England.

Hopkins also said he would be in London "for two weeks at least and at the most four weeks," or, "until I have finished the job I came to do." He said he intended to make a trip around England.

The American emissary also had a long talk with Lord Halifax, new British ambassador to America, and Anthony Eden, foreign secretary.

Hopkins arrived in London last night just after a heavy air raid had begun, but brushed aside that experience with the assertion that "nothing is less important than my impressions of air raids."

HITS PRIVATE CONTROL

MALVERN, England, Jan. 10 (AP).—The archbishop of York's church conference, meeting here, declared today that private ownership of the nation's main industrial resources may be a "stumbling block" to Christianity, making it more difficult for men to lead Christian lives.

A document embodying the conference's ideas said that "while these resources can be so owned, men will strive for their ownership. As a consequence the way of life founded on the supremacy of the economic motive will remain, which is contrary to God's plan for mankind.

Seeks End to "Abuses."

"The time has come for Christians to proclaim the need for striving toward a form of society, in which, while the essential values of the individual and human personality are preserved, a continuance of these abuses no longer will be possible."

The document pointed out that the church could never commit itself to any proposed change in the structure of society as being a self-sufficient means of salvation.

Urges United Assertion.

"In our present situation," it added, "we believe the maintenance of that part of our society by which the ultimate ownership of the principal industrial resources of the community can be vested in the hands of private owners may be a stumbling block."

The bishop of Malmsbury said he hoped the economic declaration would become the basis for a united assertion by all Christian churches.

5 POINTS TO GIVE PRESIDENT RULE OVER MUNITIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—The pertinent provisions of the bill introduced in congress today to authorize the transfer of United States war materials to other nations would empower President Roosevelt:

1. "To manufacture in arsenals, factories, and shipyards . . . or otherwise procure any defense article for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States.

[The term "defense article" is defined as any weapon, munition, aircraft, vessel, or boat; tools, machinery, and materials used in the manufacture, servicing, or operation of defense articles; and other commodities or articles for defense. The bill expressly states that the term "defense article" includes those to which the United States "has or hereafter acquires title, possession, or control."]

2. "To sell, transfer, exchange, lease, lend, or otherwise dispose of, to any such government any defense article [including equipment now in use, on order, or hereafter ordered by the army and navy].

3. "To test, inspect, prove, repair, outfit, recondition, or otherwise to place in good working order any defense article for any such government [including the warships of Great Britain or other governments].

4. "To communicate to any such government any defense information pertaining to any defense article furnished to such government.

5. "To release for export any defense article to any such government."

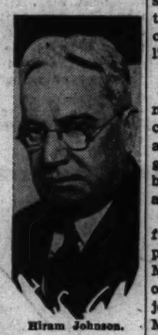
[This authority would permit the release of any secret device possessed by the army and navy, such as a bomb sight. The famous Sperry bomb sight already has been released, but the administration contends that the Norden sight is a better one and has not been released.]

Johnson Calls War Measure a Monstrosity

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Many 100 per cent New Deal supporters avoided comment today on President Roosevelt's request for vast new powers but others immediately attacked his proposal as enabling him to declare war and establish a dictatorship at home. Even outright advocates of American entry into the war were amazed by his demands. Most legislators seemed to agree that the measure faces a long, hard fight in the senate.



Hiram Johnson.

Among the comments on Capitol hill were the following:

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON [R., Cal.]—I regard the bill as presented this morning as monstrous. I am neither an appeaser nor a Hitlerite. I want to see Hitler whipped and Britain triumphant. But I decline to change the form of my government on the specious plea of assisting one belligerent. The bill presents squarely to the congress of the United States whether it shall create a dictatorship.

SENATOR BENNETT C. CLARK [D., Mo.]—It is simply a bill to authorize the President to declare war so far as international affairs are concerned and to establish a totalitarian government so far as domestic affairs are concerned.

Brooks Gives Warning.

SENATOR WAYLAND BROOKS [R., Ill.]—This bill, if passed in its present form, means that the people's representatives in congress turn over virtually all of their powers to the chief executive and makes him a dictator with complete authority to deal with the governments of any countries whose defenses he personally deems vital to the United States notwithstanding the neutrality act or

SCHEME CALLED A DICTATORSHIP AND WAR MOVE

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Congress was stunned today by the unexampled enormity of powers requested by President Roosevelt in his bill to permit the lending or giving of war munitions to the nations fighting the axis powers and the opening of American ports to the war ships of Great Britain.

Senator George.

A request for "blank check" authority had been expected, but the scope of the bill introduced in the senate and house today exceeded all advance intimations.

The immediate reaction indicated considerably more opposition to the measure than the administration had expected. Well informed members said the bill probably would go thru the house substantially unchanged, but a number of senators declared a vigorous fight on the measure would be conducted in the senate. They predicted the bill would have to be drastically revised to be reported by the foreign relations committee.

Concede It Is Unparalleled.

Noninterventionists said the bill combined a declaration of war against Germany, Italy, and Japan with the creation of a totalitarian dictatorship in the United States.

Administration supporters conceded that never in the history of the republic, not excluding the world war days under Woodrow Wilson or the so-called "hundred days" of the first rubber stamp congress under Mr. Roosevelt, had an American President sought such an imperial grant of power.

Supporters of the legislation took the position, however, that if the President's policy of giving "full support" to the nations at war with the totalitarian powers is to be carried out, he must be granted unlimited power to act.

Rubber Stamp Plans Upset.

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], new chairman of the foreign relations committee, promptly upset plans of administration leaders to put a congressional rubber stamp on the bill before Mr. Roosevelt's third term inauguration on Jan. 20.

Senator George, it was learned, refused to sponsor the bill, which explained the fact it was introduced by Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky in the senate and Majority Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts in the house. The administration's plan called for introduction of the bill by Senator George in the senate and by Representative Sol Bloom [D., N. Y.], foreign affairs committee chairman, in the house.

Despite an urgent appeal by President Roosevelt at his press conference today for immediate action, without a week's delay, Chairman George announced the bill would come before the foreign relations committee in its regular course on Wednesday, the next meeting day, and that a program of procedure would be determined then. Bloom's committee plans to consider procedure Monday and to begin hearings Tuesday.

The bill provides that "the terms and conditions upon which any foreign government receives any aid authorized [by the measure's provisions] shall be those which the President deems satisfactory, and the benefit to the United States may be payment or repayment in kind or property, or any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory."

This provision would permit the President to make outright gifts of any part of the United States fleet, any part of the army's equipment, or any quantity of munitions especially manufactured for foreign governments.

The President has asserted that the preservation of Great Britain is vital to the defense of the United States; hence he could construe Great Britain's resistance against Germany as a "direct or indirect benefit" to the United States sufficient to compensate for any quantity of war munitions supplied by this country.

The bill authorizes the appropriation, from time to time, "out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions and accomplish the purposes of this act." Congress would have to be asked for special appropriations under this authorization legislation. It has been estimated in responsible quarters that Mr. Roosevelt will ask for an initial appropriation of at least 2 billion dollars and that ultimate the cost may be 10 billion dollars.

Could Lend Warships.

Meanwhile, the President could turn over to Great Britain, Greece, China, or other countries any war ships, guns, planes, tanks, ammunition, and other munitions ordered for the army and navy with appropriations aggregating more than 13 billion dollars last year and to be ordered with budgeted appropriations of 10 billion 800 million dollars for the army and navy during the next fiscal year.

The proposed authorization for the President to open American ports for the outfitting or repairing of warships for Great Britain or other belligerents was one of the most astonishing provisions of the bill. International law recognizes as an act of war the opening of neutral ports for the outfitting or repairing of belligerent warships.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, one of the most belligerent interventionists in the President's cabinet, proposed that American ports be opened to British war vessels two days before his appointment as as war secretary last June, but there had been no intimation that Mr. Roosevelt would propose such a step.

Explain Ship Repair Clause.

A joint statement by Majority Leaders Barkley and McCormack explained the provision relating to testing, repairing, and outfitting as follows:

"It could conceivably mean, for example, that the British battle cruiser Renown could be repaired in the Brooklyn navy yard if the President considered it in the interest of our national defense to do so. The provision is broad enough to permit the use of any of our military, naval, or air bases to outfit and repair weapons of countries whose defense is vital to the defense of the United States."

Barkley and McCormack denied that the authority vested in the President would be broad enough to permit the convoying of American vessels for the shipment of war supplies to Great Britain.

Cite Bill's Final Section.

Noninterventionists, however, expressed the opinion that the bill would permit the use of American ships in convoys, escorted by naval vessels. They cited the final section of the bill, which provides that the President "may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this act, and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this act thru such department, agency, or officer as he shall direct."

The bill in effect repeals important provisions of three major statutes forbidding the aid that Mr. Roosevelt wishes to give to Great Britain and other belligerents. These are: [1] the espionage act of 1917, which makes it unlawful to take any vessel of war out of the jurisdiction of the United States for use of any belligerent; [2] the Johnson act, which makes it unlawful to extend loans or credits to nations in default on their obligations to the United States, and [3] the neutrality act, which forbids credits of any kind to nations engaged in war.

Circumvention Is Provided.

The bill circumvents these laws by authorizing the President to exercise the powers proposed to be vested in him "notwithstanding the provisions of any other law."

Noninterventionists said the unrestricted power sought by the President would enable him to use billions of dollars worth of equipment and supplies, including all articles and materials in use or hereafter obtained by the army and navy, to contract military alliances and otherwise engage in power politics thruout the world. As an example, it was suggested, Mr. Roosevelt might deem it worth several billion dollars to the United States for soviet Russia to enter the European war on the side of Great Britain, to enter the Asiatic war on the side of China, or to keep out of war and refrain from aiding Germany. The bill would enable him to make almost unlimited inducements to accomplish such a purpose.

The only restriction which the bill places upon agreements with foreign governments entered into by the President is a requirement that such foreign governments shall agree not to release war munitions obtained from the United States to any other country without the consent of the President.

President Professes Reluctance.

At his press conference this morning, Mr. Roosevelt professed great reluctance in seeking such unprecedented power. He said he did not want it, but that obviously some one must have it. In appealing for speedy congressional approval of the bill, he said a week's delay now would mean a week's delay in the delivery of essential war materials next summer, at a time when they may be vitally needed by Great Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt refused to say whether he favored cloture of the senate to expedite passage of the measure. That, he said, is a matter for the senate to pass upon. He refused to give even a rough estimate of the amount of funds he would request if congress approves the authorization legislation.

All contracts or agreements made for the disposition of any defense article or defense information pursuant to section 3 shall contain a clause by which the foreign government undertakes that it will not, without the consent of the President, transfer title to or possession of such defense article or defense information by gift, sale, or otherwise, or permit its use by any one not an officer, employé, or agent of such foreign government.

"Section 5. The secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, or the head of any other department or agency of the government involved shall, when any such defense article or defense information is exported, immediately inform the department or agency designated by the President to administer section 6 of the act of July 2, 1940 [54 statute 714], of the quantities, character, value, terms of disposition, and destination of the article and information so exported.

ROOSEVELT SEEKING POWER TO MAKE WAR, MARSHALL WARNS

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Verne Marshall, chairman of the No Foreign War committee, said tonight in commenting on the administration bill to lend or lease war equipment to countries at war that "Mr. Roosevelt has asked congress to surrender to him its exclusive war-making power and authority."

"He is asking for exactly that kind of dictatorial power which has so incensed him when exercised by governments elsewhere in this chaotic world," Marshall said. "If Mr. Roosevelt gets his wish, national socialism will replace Democracy here and the United States will go to war. Here, finally, is disclosure of a carefully laid plan to concentrate in one man's hands powers which our constitution expressly forbids."

He said the No Foreign War committee believed it "inconceivable" that congress would "submit to such an outrageous attempt to set up a dictatorship."

APPOINTMENT BIG SURPRISE, SAYS ADMIRAL KIMMEL

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 10 (AP).—Rear Admiral H. E. Kimmel, new commander in chief of the combined fleets, told a press conference today his appointment came as a "big surprise" and added:

"I will do my utmost to carry on the efficient work of my distinguished predecessors and to continue to increase the effectiveness of the fleet to enable it to be ready to support immediately the national policies of the United States whenever called upon to do so."

Referring to a sentence in President Roosevelt's recent fireside chat, he said: "I am in no position to comment whether the fleet is able to move toward Asia immediately. You must use your own interpretation regarding the President's remark."

[In his fireside chat the President said the German and Italian fleets were being blocked on the other side of the Atlantic by the British and the Greeks, the Japanese were being engaged in Asia by the Chinese, and, after a dramatic pause, "in the Pacific is our fleet."]

LEGISLATORS RIP AID BRITAIN PLAN AS STEP TO WAR

Senator Johnson Assails It as 'Monstrous.'

the provisions of any other existing laws. Its passage would give the executive power to establish a government by edict 10r the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the bill. It is the award of war power to the executive in time of peace and dangerously leads us toward war.

Harrison Is for It.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON [D., Miss.]—I'm for the legislation.

SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN [D., Tex.]—If we intend to aid democracies, it appears to me this is the practical and efficient way of doing it.

SENATOR ELLISON D. [COTTON ED] SMITH [D., S. C.]—We are about to give the President absolute power over the purse and the people, but not with my consent. If there ever was a time when congress should know what's to be done—and specifically what's to be done—it is now.

Taft Denounces Measure.

SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT [R., O.]—The proposed bill combines all the faults of the worst New Deal legislation, including the unlimited delegation of authority and blank check appropriations. In addition, it authorizes the President to make war on any nation in the world, and to enter the present war if he wishes to do so, as he apparently does. No congress except a rubber stamp congress would enact such a bill. I am unalterably opposed to it and shall do all I can to defeat it.

REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH [R., N. Y.]—It looks as if we are bringing over Nazism, Fascism, and dictatorship to America and setting up a fuehrer here. No good man should ask for such vast powers and no bad man should have them.

SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE JR. [Prog., Wis.]—This is not a bill to give the President power. It's a bill for congress to abdicate. It gives blank check authority to the President without safeguards and conceivably would permit him to dispose of our navy and allow foreign countries to base their warships in our harbors. I believe there will be a long fight in the senate on this issue.

McCormack Approves Bill.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN W. McCORMACK [D., Mass.]—The bill properly delegates the power to the President of the United States, the only man in the United States inexecutive position whose constituency is the entire country.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN M. VORYS [R., Ohio]—It's a streamlined, modern declaration of war and should be considered as such.

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE [R., N. D.]—This amounts to a request for a grant of power to the President equal to a declaration of war.

"Absolute, Dictatorial Power."

REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES A. EATON [R., N. J.]—I believe it our duty to furnish every aid to a free people but I shrink from furnishing that aid by turning over to one man absolute, dictatorial power.

REPRESENTATIVE CHARLES A. LEAVY [D., Wash.]—It would tremendously strengthen Great Britain if she would now come forward with an offer to transfer to the United States those island possessions in the Caribbean, that mean so much to us and so little to her, in part payment.

REPRESENTATIVE JAMES W. MOTT [R., Ore.]—I am in favor of total national defense and of aiding Great Britain, but it seems to me to be a complete surrender by the congress of all of its legislative power.

AIR EXPERT CHARGES U. S. BUYS OUTMODED ENGINES FOR PLANES

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP).—Col. G. De Freese Larner, general manager of the National Aeronautic association, largest aviation group in the United States, today told the Miami Kiwanis club that the United States is to spend "some $50,000,000 of the taxpayers' money" on "out of date" airplane engines.

Speaking during the three day mid-winter air show at Miami's municipal airport, Larner said this country has radial, air-cooled engines far in advance of the 1,200 horse power British Rolls Royce engine to be produced by an automobile company. He criticized the Allison 1,100 horse power liquid-cooled airplane engine being fitted to the army's new Curtis pursuits, as "a five year old model."

This country, Larner said, has 2,000 horse power engines already in production, and the European belligerents are basing their spring and summer aviation plans on new engines of that power. He said: "We talk of an army air force of 25,000 airplanes and a naval air force of half that number," there are no airports to handle even 20,000 warplanes.

Bill for British War Aid Gets a Number; It's 1776

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10 [Special].—The "all-out" aid to Britain bill took the number HR1776 today when it reached the house bill clerk's office. The fact that the number coincides with the year of United States independence was said by officials to be purely a coincidence. "The last bill bore the number 1775," a clerk said, "and as this bill was the first to reach this office today, it was designated 1776 as a matter of routine."

DEWEY RIPS INTO AID BILL; SAYS IT PERILS LIBERTY

Would Virtually Abolish Congress, He Warns.

New York, Jan. 10 [Special].—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency last year, today characterized President Roosevelt's "so-called" defense bill as a measure which "would bring an end to free government in the United States and would abolish the congress for all practical purposes."

"I strongly favor every possible aid to Great Britain short of war," said Dewey's statement. "I am sure it is the united desire of our people to halt dictator aggressors.

He Defends Congress.

"There has been no refusal by congress to support the victims of aggression. I am sure there will be none. The President has no right to assume that congress lacks patriotism or in these times will fail to do its duty swiftly and effectively. This bill is an attempt to abolish free government in the United States.

"In short, this bill empowers the President to commit acts of war without the approval of congress in any conflict—present or future—anywhere in the world.

"This is the time for national unity. The President's proposal is a grave blow not only to national unity but to all free government everywhere.

"All aid to the embattled free countries can be provided by an America which is still free and working under the democratic process. I am sure congress will authorize all possible aid without surrendering its right to represent the people."

Warning by Hoover.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Asked to comment on the administration bill authorizing President Roosevelt to lend or lease war equipment to "democracies," former President Herbert Hoover issued the following statement today:

"The first thing congress has to consider is the suggestion of enormous surrender of its responsibilities. No such powers were granted in the last war. So far as I know, no such surrender has been made by the British parliament either in the last war or this war.

"We all wish our industry tuned up to maximum output for our defense and to aid other countries to defend their independence. But the practical surrender of power to take these steps that are possible under this legislation is something else. It enters the field of preservation of democracy in this country."

ONE BASE GIVEN BY BRITISH POOR, ADMIRAL ADMITS

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Admitting that one of the eight naval and air bases acquired from the British in exchange for 50 destroyers was "not very satisfactory," Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics, today refused to divulge further information concerning the sites.

Admiral Towers told the house naval affairs committee that the information sought by Representative W. Sterling Cole [R., N.Y.], was confidential and could not be stated publicly. He offered to make a private report to the committee.

Does Not Name Base.

The admiral's statement supported reports that the British have not been giving the United States the best available sites in their possessions for the use of aircraft and fighting ships. Altho Admiral Towers did not name the unsatisfactory base he referred to it was said that the proposed airplane landing field in one island contained a swamp in its area. The British thus far have refused to yield up land in the island more suitable for a landing field.

[A month ago published reports disclosed that British officials on this side of the Atlantic were refusing stubbornly to grant the United States sites it desired for bases on Trinidad, a key to Panama canal defense. They were said to be insisting that the United States accept more or less uninhabited swamp lands on the island off the Venezuelan coast instead of the air defense center sought on the higher ground of the island's western side.]

Representative Cole asked Admiral Towers regarding the use made by the navy of the $10,000,000 appropriated by congress for establishment of bases outside the United States. The witness also declined to discuss this matter publicly, saying he would comment upon it in a confidential report.

Will Call Secret Session.

Chairman Carl A. Vinson [D., Ga.], said the committee would hold an executive session later at which Admiral Towers would be questioned about the bases.

Towers said the contract for part of the base in Newfoundland had been let but did not explain how far work had proceeded.

In establishing naval reserve bases in the United States, Towers testified, approximately $900,000 is being spent at Atlanta, New Orleans, and Dallas to construct buildings and improve tracts leased or donated by state and municipal governments. Other bases are being established at Glenview, Ill.; Grosse Isle, Mich.; Kansas City, Miami, Long Beach, Cal.; Minneapolis, Oakland, St. Louis, Squantum, Mass.; Seattle, Philadelphia, and Anacostia, Md.

Charges Waste at Long Beach.

Representative Melvin J. Maas [R., Minn.] asserted that the navy was wasting money in trying to improve the field at Long Beach, Cal. He predicted that there would be casualties at the field, which is small and in a congested area.

Representative Arthur B. Jenks [R., N. H.] questioned Towers about casualties in the naval air service, asking if they were not "exceptionally large."

"On the contrary," Towers said, "I feel they are exceptionally small. The United States navy is right at the top compared with the safety records of other navies."

Pays Loitering Charge Fine of 47 Auto Plant Workers

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 10 [Canadian Press].—George Burt of Oshawa, regional director of the United Automobile Workers of America, today paid fines totaling $1,650 for 47 former Chrysler Motor corporation employés convicted of loitering in the vicinity of an essential industry. The men were arrested under the defense of Canada regulations last November when they attempted to walk in a picket line during a dispute between company officials and some of the workers.

His wife is Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Townsend Strom, 23, of 239 South Maple avenue, Oak Park. Strom is 28. They have a daughter, Barbara, 2. Strom is suing for divorce on a charge of drunkenness and is seeking custody of the child.

Strom was questioned by Mrs. Strom's attorney, Robert E. Cantwell Jr.

Strom, in addition to detailing his holdings, also testified that he gave his wife $250 a month spending money before their separation. Judge Desort ordered him to supply a complete list of his assets next Thursday.

AL SMITH ASKS SACRIFICES TO SPEED DEFENSE

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith declared tonight that "the big question" facing the United States was "whether or not, without declaring war, we can get war-time production."

In a broadcast address under the auspices of the committee to defend America by aiding the allies, he asserted that "up to the present time our people generally have not taken the situation seriously enough."

"They do not seem to realize that the era of business as usually conducted is over and that ordinary, easy-going living and peace-time pursuits must yield to defense," he said.

The former governor said that "the government at Washington must set up an efficient, powerful and responsible defense organization. The President must be prepared to delegate authority in the same way that President Wilson delegated it in 1917."

BRITISH BOMBERS ATTACK CRUISERS IN SICILIAN PORT

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 10 (AP).—British pilots dropped several tons of bombs on the harbor of Messina, Sicily, last night and a whole series of explosives fell across Italian cruisers, the British middle east command announced tonight.

Arrow locates bombed Sicilian harbor.

The vessels attacked were said to have laid down such thick smoke screens that whatever damage was done could not be observed.

Bombs Straddle Oil Tanks.

"Several tons of bombs were dropped on naval vessels in the harbor and on wharves, docks, and oil storage plants," the statement said. "One stick of bombs straddled the army marshalling yards and oil tanks to the south of the harbor. Fires were started at wharves and near the drydock. Other bombs fell very close to the oil storage plant, causing explosions with green flashes. All our aircraft returned undamaged to their base."

British bombs fell "on or very near" the stern of an Italian battleship of the Littorio class, "causing a dull red glow," the British air force reported of a Wednesday night raid on Naples.

[The Littorio class is Italy's new 35,000 ton division—the Littorio, Vittorio Veneto, Impero, and Roma. Only the Littorio and Vittorio Veneto have been put into service. The others are building. One of the class was claimed by the British to have been hit and left "badly down by the bows" in the aerial torpedo attack on the Taranto base the night of Nov. 11-12.]

Hit Railway Station.

The communique also reported direct hits on the Naples railway station and added that fires were started among large motor vessels in the harbor and along the waterfront.

"Several bombs" hit buildings on the quay, rail lines were blasted, and a series of thundering explosions erupted, the statement went on.

Palermo, Sicily, the object of a Wednesday night raid, received a return call, the communique said, adding that bombs straddled the wharf there, causing explosions.

Report Battleship Bombed.

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP). — Destructive blows against enemy naval power and shipping, including a bomb hit on a British battleship, sinking of two submarines, and attacks on four merchant vessels, were announced today by the Italian high command.

The bombing of a British battleship [unofficially denied in London] occurred in a raid on an eastern Mediterranean naval formation, the Italian high command said. It said one British plane was shot down, but acknowledged two Italian aircraft failed to return.

Sink "Free France" U-Boat.

One of the two submarines sunk by Italian torpedo boats, the communique said, was the 1,400 ton French Narval. [Loss of the Narval, first French naval unit employed on Britain's side, was reported by "Free French" headquarters in London Thursday.]

Italian submarines operating in the Atlantic were said to have sunk the 2,883 ton Greek freighter Anastassia and the armed British ship Shakespear. Other submarines were credited with torpedo hits on two vessels in a Mediterranean convoy.

Call General Strike Over Paraguay's Labor Ruling

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 10 (AP). —A general strike was called today in protest against government powers to arbitrate labor disputes and mobilize workers during a strike. The government termed it only partly successful in a statement. Transit, printing, and building unions called the walkout.

JOSEPHINE CALDWELL.

New York, Jan. 10 [Special].—A willowy blonde from Philadelphia, Pa., was named "Miss Fashion Futures of the United States," defeating rivals from New York, Chicago, and San Francisco, at the final showing of "Fashion Futures" in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night. She is Josephine Caldwell, 22 years old, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Caldwell had a few anxious moments, however, before the audience could make up its mind between her and Miss Margaret Hayes, a redhead from Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Caldwell is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 130 pounds.

The blonde model's ambition is to be a successful doctor's wife, and she is working at it now. Her husband is Dr. Gilbert Barron, an intern in a Philadelphia hospital.

Hollywood is "out of the question," said Miss Caldwell, who is more interested in writing plays and poetry.

BRITISH UNLEASH BIGGEST DAYTIME ATTACK ON NAZIS

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Jan. 11, Saturday (AP).—The big British naval base at Portsmouth was the main objective of German bombers last night, informed quarters reported today. No British war planes appeared over the Reich during the night, it was said.

LONDON, Jan. 11, Saturday (AP).—In the mightiest daylight offensive ever loosed by the royal air force, 50 British bombers and 500 fighter planes delivered a ground shaking assault yesterday over a thousand square miles of northwestern France. London, however, passed the night without an alarm.

The air ministry itself announced in general terms merely that more than 100 fighters were involved, but unofficial observers said the fighters outnumbered the bombers by 10 to 1.

They were declared to have struck at the channel straits areas of Calais and Boulogne and elsewhere upon the bases of the Nazi "invasion" effort, sweeping the German positions with bombs and machine gun fire—the latter from eight gunned fighter craft which formed the biggest escort ever to take off from England.

Three Claimed Shot Down.

Three of the "few" German planes which rose to challenge the raiders were shot down, the air ministry said, and but a single British plane was lost—that on the return trip.

[In Berlin the official German news agency DNB reported that eight British planes were destroyed in the attack. Informed sources asserted no bombs fell on military objectives.]

For an hour, just at midday, British explosives fell. Hits were claimed upon a series of airdromes—assaulted by planes diving down to within 200 feet of the target—and upon German patrol ships and military ouildings. The southeast English coast—20 to 30 miles from the coastal targets—shuddered under the shock.

Liken It to Nazi Attacks.

It was a raid likened by British aviation circles to the great German mass attacks of last September on Britain, "but more successful" than these. British flyers returned last night and blasted the Brest naval base in German occupied France.

This daytime attack followed Thursday night forays even bigger in scope, extending from the coast of Norway to interior Germany and southern France—many of them carried out thru very unfavorable weather. The announced results:

In France—Brest hit again; Dunkirk and Calais as well.

Britain suffered a heavy new blow, too, when hundreds of high explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on a south coast town last night and early today in a furious German attack. The British Press association said it is feared there were many casualties. A first attempt to start a "fire blitz" on the town was turned back early last night by R. A. F. fighter planes. Then a second and larger wave of raiders smothered the town with incendiaries and explosives.

20 Killed in Germany.

BERLIN, Jan. 10 (AP).—British planes raiding "various places" in Germany last night killed 20 persons and left many injuries, the German high command announced today.

GERMANS SET NAVY LOSSES FOR ENTIRE WAR AT 70,000 TONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 10. — The German navy has lost war vessels aggregating 70,000 tons since the war began, according to figures released today. The British, on the other hand, admit the loss of warships totaling more than 450,000 tons, the Germans asserted. These inroads on the British fleet, combined with the recent completion of two 35,000 ton battleships and other war vessels by Germany, have changed the ratio between the two navies in favor of Germany, the Nazis declared.

The pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, which was scuttled by its crew off Montevideo, displaced 10,000 tons. The two cruisers Bluecher and Karlsruhe, which were sunk in the Norwegian campaign, together displaced 16,000 tons. Adding 10 German destroyers which also were lost in Norwegian waters and a number of torpedo boats, minesweepers, and other smaller craft, the remaining 20,000 tons would account for German U-boat losses.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 10 (AP).—The first Garand semiautomatic army rifle produced by private industry rolled off the assembly line at the Winchester Repeating Arms company today and was presented to Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson of Washington, chief of the army ordnance department.

The weapon, heretofore produced only at the federal arsenal in Springfield, Mass., was the first of 65,000 to be manufactured at the Winchester plant under an $8,710,000 contract.

John C. Garand of Springfield, inventor of the gun, and several high ranking war department officers heard Gen. Wesson term it "the most effective combat rifle in the world."

Edwin S. Pugsley, Winchester vice president, said the first gun was completed almost three months ahead of schedule, and that the firm would soon be turning out 5,000 a month

BRITISH CANNON POUND TOBRUK AS TROOPS CLOSE IN Italian Base Is Nearly Cut Off in Libya.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 10 (AP).—Britain's batteries in Libya shelled Italian held Tobruk today in the initial blow of an attack patterned after that which reduced Bardia, 50 miles to the east, five days ago.

Nearly cut off by an encircling movement of British mechanized units 50 miles to the west, Tobruk was rapidly being surrounded by British land forces, while its outer defenses were battered by big siege guns rolled into place from Bardia.

Faces Triple Offensive.

The seacoast town—if the Bardia pattern is followed—faces not only a heavy attack from land but severe bombing from the air and shelling from the sea.

The aerial bombardment already has started. British flyers reported an attack on the town today.

The British said Benina airdrome, in Libya, again was raided, with at least 12 Italian planes destroyed and hangars and other buildings blown to pieces by direct hits.

While Tobruk was being put under siege the British sought to drive a corridor across the "hump" of Libya to cut off the whole province of Cirenaica.

This would put the British advance guard on the Mediterranean at the base of the Gulf of Sidra, 300 miles from the Libyan-Egyptian frontier, and isolate both Tobruk and Bengazi.

British Recapture Buna.

Some 2,500 miles to the southeast of the Libyan front British general headquarters reported that troops of the reënforced South African army had recaptured Buna, in the Moyale sector of Kenya, which the Italians have held for months.

It was reported that revolting tribesmen in Italian conquered Ethiopia were attacking airdromes and cutting the Italian lines of supply to the Kenya sector.

The British indicated their forces had carried the fight also to Italian East Africa in the Kenya-Italian Somaliland border zone where they reported Fascist troops had abandoned El Wak.

Bomb British Motor Units.

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Italian high command today reported that Fascist planes "hit about 100 mechanized vehicles" in the Libyan desert, while other British mechanized equipment was destroyed by artillery fire at Tobruk, the principal remaining Italian stronghold in eastern Libya.

The 100 British motor units said to have been hit by Italian planes were headed toward Acroma, about 100 miles south and slightly west of Tobruk.

Other Italian planes were credited with bombing Sollum, Egypt, and machine gunning tents and armored cars in East African area near Kassala and Sciusceib.

Italian Troops Flee; Greeks Take Klisura; Town Burned

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 10 (AP).—While Greeks at home rejoiced in the streets over fresh victories in Albania, the forces at the front today were reported to have pushed past captured Klisura toward Valona—last important port in southern Albania still held by the Italians.

Greek troops occupying Klisura today, found it had been burned and pillaged, a general headquarters communique said.

Most of the townspeople had deserted the town, but 600 Italian soldiers were taken prisoner and four guns, some tanks, mortars, and automatic guns were captured, the communique added.

Bomb Italian Positions.

Greek aviation was reported to have bombed and machine gunned Italian positions without losing a plane.

With the spearhead of the Greek drive in the Klisura sector only about 30 miles from Valona, Italian troops beyond Klisura were said to be in disorderly retreat.

As a result of Klisura's fall, military observers predicted the Italians probably would be forced to abandon Tepeleni, 15 miles west of Klisura on the way to Valona.

It was a few miles beyond Klisura, in the direction of Berat, that the Italians were said to be withdrawing. Klisura stands at a crossroad—one leading to Berat and Durazzo, the other to Valona.

Two Drives Headed for Valona.

Two Greek drives have been headed at Valona, one on the central front toward Klisura and Tepeleni, and the other from Chimara and Porto Edda, up the Adriatic coast.

A Greek spokesman revealed a raid by 200 Italians in motor launches Jan. 6 on the Aegean island of Kimaros.

"There are only two people living on the island," he said. "The Italian raiders searched their huts and departed the next day."

As Premier General John Metaxas told his cabinet about the capture of Klisura crowds gathered joyfully in the streets to celebrate. King George and others high in the government appeared at windows and bells pealed thruout the country.

Shell Coastal Positions.

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Italian high command today announced that Fascist warships had shelled "enemy coastal positions" in the Greek campaign. It also reported "local action" and artillery activity on the Albanian front with hits reported on antiaircraft emplacements at an "enemy naval base."

ITALY SETS LOSS IN GREEK WAR AT 8,951 IN 1 MONTH

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP).—An official Italian announcement today placed Fascist losses in the war with Greece during December at 8,951 men, including 1,301 killed, 3,052 missing and 4,598 wounded.

An official Italian resumé on Dec. 23 said that in the first six months of European war, Italy's casualties numbered 18,824 men, including 4,531 killed, 10,055 wounded and 4,238 missing.

These figures, covering the period rom Italy's entry into the war against the allies on June 10 until Dec. 12, did not break down the losses by fronts and did not include the latest figures from Albania, where losses were said to have been heavy.

Red Cross figures at Athens show that the Greeks have taken more than 14,000 prisoners since the beginning of the Greek-Italian conflict. In addition to these the Italians were said by the Greeks to have shipped home 35,000 sick and wounded from the port of Valona alone.

CANADA ORDERS 100,000 ADDED TO INDUSTRIAL ARMY

Moves to Meet Needs of War Production.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 10.—The Canadian government today ordered the training of 100,000 war workers annually to meet estimated industrial war production needs. This compares with 26,000 who were specially trained last year. About half of the 1941 trainees will be accommodated in vocational schools and the remainder in war industries.

The order is based on findings of an interdepartmental committee, made public today by Labor Minister Norman A. McLarty, which revealed the need for 75,700 additional workers, as well as 117,200 men for the Canadian armed forces.

It is planned to expand the navy by 5,400 men, the army by 80,000, and the air force by 31,800.

These planned additions to Canada's fighting units will bring the dominion's armed forces to nearly 470,000 by the end of the year.

The army now stands at about 300,000, of whom 175,000 are on active service. The air force, now totaling 35,000, will be brought to 66,800 this year and the navy will be increased from 15,000 to 20,400.

According to the committee's survey about 150,000 workers are employed on war contracts and 225,000 will be so employed at the end of the year, with an ever ascending scale of war production anticipated.

Italy Orders Food Census; Plans Further Rationing

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP).—Giuseppe Tassinari, Italy's minister of agriculture and "food dictator," today ordered a census of all stocks of essential foodstuffs, including wheat, corn, flour, spaghetti, rice, olive oil, butter, and lard, to provide the government with a basis for further rationing of these foods.

RUMANIAN AID OF NAZIS SENT TO U. S. PRISON

Found Guilty of Fraud in Passports.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—A 58 year old Rumanian Jew, accused by the government of acting as financial agent for high ranking Germans in espionage work and propaganda, was sentenced today to two years in prison and fined $2,500 for passport fraud.

He is Isidore Lazarus, who Assistant United States Attorney Richard J. Burke said had transferred large sums of money from Germany for Marshal Hermann Goering, Dr. Paul J. Goebbels, minister of propaganda; Hjalmar Schacht, ex-minister of economics, and other German officials.

He Pleads Guilty.

The gray haired defendant pleaded guilty, but insisted that while he was on friendly terms with Reich leaders, it was solely for the purpose of aiding victims of persecution—Jews, Catholics, and Protestants alike.

Burke said that Lazarus "according to his own story, said that he had been engaged in international exchange under the name Lee Lane since 1933, when the Nazis came into power in Germany, and was a close friend of German leaders."

The government charged that Lazarus took money out of Germany in behalf of Goering, Schacht, and Robert Ley, labor minister, entered New York on a false passport in June, 1939, and later deposited a total of $138,000 in cash and securities in three New York banks.

Aided Refugees, He Insists.

Burke said the defendant insisted that he had used his connections to help refugees "get a small percentage of their money out of Germany," but, Burke added, "most of their funds remained in Germany and probably wound up in the pockets of German officials."

As Burke completed his charges, Lazarus stood up in court.

"Give me the opportunity and I'll bring the big men from Europe to prove that these insinuations, as far as my motives are concerned, are false," he said. "I have given thousands and thousands of dollars to aid refugees of my own race, as well as Catholics and Protestants.

"Send me to jail if you want, but let me clear myself of these aspersions."

His Criminal Record.

The government said Lazarus first came to this country in 1900 and that since 1923 he had obtained and used seven passports. Official records showed, the court was informed, that Lazarus was convicted twice in this country for operating confidence games.

The indictment said he was born in Rumania in 1882 but that in obtaining a passport thru the American consul in Berlin in 1937 he stated he was born in 1887 in Fort Wayne, Ind. Lazarus used this passport when he came to this country in 1939.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR MAKING BIG BOMBERS—FORD

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10 [Special].—Edsel Ford, president of the Ford company, today concluded three days of surveying aircraft production methods in southern California with the announcement that prospects of his company building assemblies for 1,200 huge bombers "look excellent."

Until his staff of engineers complete a technical analysis of problems involved in turning automotive facilities to aeronautical uses, Ford said he preferred to withhold definite commitment on the giant program.

"Right now," Ford said, "I'd say the chances of our meeting the demand for 1,200 four engined bomber assemblies look excellent.

"However, manufacturing these planes [Consolidated B-24 bombers] will require addition of much brand new tooling equipment to our Detroit plants. We must first evolve a suitable factory layout. Probably, if we decide we can handle larger production, we'll have to erect a new plant near our River Rouge automobile center."

REPORT ITALIAN TROOPS SHOOT 80 ALBANIAN REBELS

Fighting between the Albanians and the Italian troops started when the Albanians refused to continue forced labor on roads and fortifications, border reports said.

JAPS DISTURBED BY U. S. NAVY'S PLANS IN PACIFIC

Believe 'Aggression' to Be Result.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—Altho official circles remained silent today on President Roosevelt's budget message, the press and some diplomatic quarters vision "aggression" in connection with the proposal to strengthen the American fleet and bases in the Pacific. This proposal, it was held here, is aimed at breaking Japan's domination in the western Pacific.

Such a move, it was maintained, exceeds the bounds of preparedness and plainly indicates aggressive intentions.

The newspaper Tokio Asahi commented that American moves in aid of Britain, Greece, and China, and the strengthening of American land, sea and air forces, were being carried out carefully in an effort to complete the necessary measures for competition against the totalitarian camp.

Chinese Hope for U. S. Aid.

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 10 (AP).—Chinese quarters declared tonight that the early arrival of American war supplies might spell the difference between success or failure in the event—considered likely—that Japan should launch a tremendous new offensive against Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese armies.

A high Chinese official declared China's need of supplies from the United States was equally if not more urgent than Britain's requirements.

However, he said, the latest expressions of American policy were a source of great encouragement to the Chinese government, particularly the equal rating accorded the European and Asiatic wars and the view that China is playing an important rôle in the struggle against aggression.

Sees Threat to Jap Navy.

The Chungking newspaper Takungpao did some figuring today and decided that "the United States navy is 322 times more powerful than the Japanese navy."

The editorial writer figured that the present American naval budget is 322 times the Japanese naval budget, based on the rate of unofficial dealings in the yen. "The fate of the Japanese empire lies in President Roosevelt's hands," the writer elaborated. "The Japanese navy can be wiped out when he decides."

Japs to Tighten Air Defense.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—A Domei [Japanese news agency] broadcast from Tokio today said the cabinet approved an army and navy proposal for tightening the nation's air defenses.

SUGGEST INDIES AS SECURITY FOR LOANS TO BRITISH

Sale of Islands Proposed as Alternative.

New York, Jan. 10 [Special].—Business men and students of military tactics held today that Great Britain might offer the West Indies as acceptable security for any war loans obtained from the United States. Others said that transfer of title in these strategic islands to the United States thru direct sale might prove beneficial to both countries.

These suggestions followed the statement of economists this week that if Great Britain is seeking war credits on a business basis, rather than alms, English rubber holdings would serve as sound collateral. Interest in the subject was aroused by the proposal in Chicago of William B. Benton, vice president of the University of Chicago.

Museums Another Suggestion.

Benton suggested that Americans, in order to clarify thinking on the subject, should ask themselves if they mean to make a loan or direct monetary gifts to England. If there is any serious intention of obtaining repayment of loans, Benton said, the United States might ask England to ship the collections from British museums to America as collateral.

Long held politically important to the United States as a possible first line of defense, the West Indies once were mentioned as suitable payment for the five billion dollar war debt owed by Great Britain from the last war. Leases on air and naval bases were obtained by the United States on Bermuda and Jamaica in the recent destroyer-naval base deal with England.

Favorite Tourist Resorts.

The West Indies, made up of the Bahamas, Bermuda, Barbados, Jamaica, Leeward and Windward Islands, and Trinidad and Tobago, cover an area of 12,179 square miles, and in 1938 exported a total of $66,300,000. Bermuda, the Bahamas, and Jamaica are favorite resorts for winter tourists, and the former listed 82,062 cruise arrivals in 1938, 52,289 of whom were Americans.

Largest and most valuable of the islands is Jamaica, which reported government receipts of $9,980,820 in 1938-'39 as compared with expenditures of $9,278,668. Principal products are sugar cane, logwood, coffee, bananas, rum, coconuts, ginger cocoa, pimento, oranges, and cigars. Molasses and rum are manufactured on the Barbados, while asphalt, oil, and their derivatives are found on Trinidad.

Sponges and sisal [from which hemp is made] are the chief sources of revenue on the Bahama Islands. Cotton grown on Sea Island of the Windward group is said to be the best in the world. In fixing a possible price for the West Indies, business men pointed to the purchase of the Virgin Islands by the United States from Denmark for 25 million dollars.

Area and Exports.

Two of the most important factors in setting a purchase price, it was pointed out, are area and exports. The area of the Virgin Islands is 133 square miles and the value of Virgin Islands' exports in 1938 was $1,250,000. Area and exports of the British West Indies for 1938 are:

	Sq. miles.	Exports.
Bahamas	4,404	$ 900,000
Bermuda	19	600,000
Barbados	166	5,300,000
Jamaica, Turks, Caicos	4,674	21,000,000
Leeward Islands	422	2,400,000
Trinidad and Tobago	1,978	35,000,000
Windward Islands	516	1,100,000
Total	12,179	$66,300,000

Using the price of the Virgin Islands as a basis for comparison, business men held that on area the West Indies are worth approximately 2 billion 300 million. On the basis of exports their value is held to be one billion 325 million.

Scientist Hits Roosevelt Plan as a Camouflage for War

Dr. Anton J. Carlson, University of Chicago physiologist, last night applied the term "camouflaged war" to the measure proposed to congress by President Roosevelt to aid nations fighting the axis powers.

"We can't do that sort of thing except with crossed fingers, if I understand the honesty of nations," said Dr. Carlson, who has seen the results of war in many countries as an officer of the United States army sanitary corps. "We are making our own international law. It would be much more honest to declare war. I do not like war by subterfuge."

Janet Ayer Fairbank, a member of the national committee of the America First committee, said that if congress yields to the President's demands, the measure would prove a step toward establishing a totalitarian government in the United States.

Issue Put Up to Congress.

"The President's bid for virtual dictatorship in the United States puts it up to congress to save the country," declared Mrs. Fairbank. "On that body rests the sacred duty to preserve our Democratic form of government by holding firmly to the powers given it by the constitution of the United States.

"It is ardently to be hoped that our representatives in Washington will prove equal to the task before them. If they yield, it is a long step to establishing in our country a totalitarian government such as we abhor in Europe."

Meanwhile opposition to giving the President unlimited power at any time was expressed in a resolution adopted by the 7th congressional district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

Calls for Votes Against War.

It also called upon representatives in congress "to vote against all measures calculated to involve the country in war."

Frank J. Mackey, writer and publisher, told a meeting of the Citizens Keep America Out of War committee last night that "any one who thinks, knows that the road which the President of the United States is traveling is the road to war." He spoke before 900 persons in the La Salle hotel.

"Our government is not any more neutral in this war than Louis XVI. and the French government were during the revolutionary war," said Mackey. "France's aid 'short of war' to the American colonies resulted in England declaring war on France. The steps which we are taking to aid England eventually will result either in the axis powers declaring war on the United States or in some act which will cause the United States to take this action."

ORDAIN 14 NAZI PRISONERS; 5 OF THEM CANADIANS

PARIS, Dec. 21 [Via Berlin] [Delayed.]—Fourteen prisoners including five Canadians and nine from British dominions, who are in custody in St. Denis military barracks, today were ordained in St. Denis chapel, where the kings of France are buried. The prisoners marched to the basilica in soldier fashion, accompanied by German troopers. The Canadians sat in a choir during the ceremony while the other prisoners found places between huge stacks of sandbags put up to protect the kings' tombs.

VICHY CUTS TAXES TO LET A HUNGRY PARIS HAVE FOOD

Hope Blockade Will Be Eased for Medicines.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Jan. 10—The question of Paris food supply for the moment preoccupies the Petain government. Paris is cold and hungry, according to reports received here. Today it was officially announced that the practice of levying a tax on food entering Paris from the country has been modified and that any food taxes levied will be covered by state subvention.

Commenting on the Paris food situation, the newspaper Le Journal said, "Paris must be able to eat. The government accordingly has taken measures to see that Paris suffers no more than the rest of France. Two thirds of our territory is occupied. We also are blockaded. We are in the midst of a specially rigorous winter, which has increased communication difficulties."

Franco-German relations, meanwhile, are without change. Rumors have been spread about further cabinet changes, but none have occurred.

Hope Blockade May Be Eased.

VICHY, France, Jan. 10 (AP).—Official circles today expressed the hope that the British blockade would be relaxed to permit shipment of medicines for German occupied France. Pleasure was voiced over a British Broadcasting corporation announcement that a shipment of 13,000 doses of vitamins, now held at Bermuda, would be permitted to continue to unoccupied France.

It was explained, however, that "the need of the children in the occupied zone for medical aid is even greater than here."

[British authorities in Bermuda were reported Tuesday to have confiscated 13,000 vitamin capsules from Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli, the fashion designer. They were a gift of Americans to the Friends Service Committee in Paris.]

Assail Leahy's Presence.

BERLIN, Jan. 10 (AP).—The presence of United States Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy in Vichy was interpreted by authorized German quarters today as a step "to attenuate the bad impression" of the United States in France over lack of ample food relief from America.

The shipments of condensed milk from America were regarded as merely "a drop of water on a hot tile."

[The American Red Cross has obtained permission from Britain to send milk to occupied France.]

U. S. Ship Ready to Take Aid to Spain and France

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—A Red Cross spokesman said today that the 5,010 ton American freighter Cold Harbor was on its way to Baltimore to load a $1,000,000 cargo of food and medicines for Spain and France. British authorities have agreed to permit the vessel to take the cargo thru the blockade.

PERJURY CHARGE MADE AT QUIZ ON DEMOCRAT LOAN

Tobey Assails Quayle for Refuted Testimony.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10 (AP).—Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] declared today that Oliver A. Quayle, general manager of the Democratic national committee, was "guilty of perjury" in testimony before the senate campaign investigating committee about loans to Democratic groups by R. J. Reynolds.

Oliver A. Quayle.

Reynolds, of the wealthy North Carolina tobacco family, told the committee today that he had loaned $300,000 to help reelect President Roosevelt and that the loans were arranged by William Johnson, finance director of the Democratic national committee.

Quayle testified yesterday that he had arranged $275,000 of the Reynolds loan. Reynolds said that Quayle told him today he was "confused" about this.

Tobey commented that any man "with the mental capacity to become general manager of one of the great political parties knows what he testifies to under oath before a senate committee."

Makes Perjury Charge.

"When he sits down here and makes a statement that later is thrown out of the window," the senator continued, "that somebody is guilty of perjury. Let's get down to brass tacks. It's disgraceful."

Chairman Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] interrupted to say the perjury statement was a "pretty strong conclusion." Gillette agreed that Quayle should be recalled before the group.

Senator Lister Hill [D., Ala.] demanded that the committee also call large contributors to Republican campaign funds including the "du Ponts, the Pew family, and the Rockefeller family."

Hill said a compilation by committee clerks showed that the du Ponts had contributed $60,350 to various Republican and Willkie groups, that the Pew family of Philadelphia had given $91,025, the Rockefeller family $30,500, and Edgar Monsanto Quinn of St. Louis, Mo., $18,000.

Chairman Gillette said the committee probably could not subpena all large Republican contributors and complete its report to the senate by the end of this month.

Reynolds Is Questioned.

Appearing before the committee, Reynolds said his appointment as treasurer of the Democratic national committee was a post-election development and that he had not yet assumed his duties.

The witness, smiling broadly at times, differed with previous testimony by Quayle that Quayle arranged loans by Reynolds of $275,000 to New York and New Jersey state committees just prior to the November election.

It was Johnson who telephoned him and obtained the loans, the witness said, adding "Mr. Quayle probably was confused but I never did discuss with him these notes."

Senator Tobey asked him whether it was "not peculiar that the general manager of a great national political committee would testify under oath that he telephoned and arranged these loans, when that was 100 per cent wrong."

"Mr. Quayle probably was confused," Reynolds said. "He was working 18 hours a day. You better ask him about that."

Vital to Carry New York.

Reynolds said Democratic leaders told him it was vital to carry New York and Illinois for the President and he agreed to lend $25,000 to the Illinois Democrats and $75,000 to New York. Later, he said, he advanced $100,000 to New Jersey Democrats and they sent about $40,000 of this on to New York state. After election, Reynolds said, he advanced another $100,000 to New York.

Senator Tobey kept referring to the $300,000 in loans as contributions but Reynolds interrupted to say they were loans he "expected to be repaid" and that he made a $5,000 contribution to the national committee.

After testifying that he received 90 day notes for his loans, Reynolds pulled them from his pocket and Tobey noticed that the $25,000 Illinois Democratic note was for six months.

"It is? I did not know that," Reynolds said with surprise.

"I wish I was in a position that I did not need to know the length of notes," Tobey said.

Illinois Shows No Funds.

Gillette said the committee had had some difficulty with the report from the Illinois state Democratic committee because it showed no contributions or expenditures.

"They told us that both the Cook county [Chicago] group and the downstate Democratic group handled their own funds," Gillette told reporters. "We'll ask them to clear this up because the Democratic national committee reported it sent $25,000 to Illinois."

Gillette said he did not know whether the latter was the same that Reynolds listed, altho Reynolds said he sent the loan directly to Illinois state leaders.

An incomplete tabulation of expenditures by all political groups who have reported showed $21,746,000 spent during the 1940 campaign, Gillette said. The tabulation did not include sums spent by local political committees and groups or individual campaign expenses of senatorial candidates.

Senator Tobey asked Reynolds whether any of his corporations received subsidies from the federal government. Reynolds said that the American Mail Lines, formerly known as the Dollar Lines, received some subsidy. The witness said he first acquired stock in the shipping line about a year ago from creditors during a reorganization, and last summer increased his holdings to a controlling interest.

Disputes Tobey's Figures.

Tobey noted that this shipping line had acquired six ships from the maritime commission and asked Reynolds if the annual rental was $400,000.

"The rental depends upon income," Reynolds replied, adding that the charters were arranged "before I came into the picture."

Tobey asked if the line received $598,000 in subsidies as operating differentials from the maritime commission, or about $100,000 a ship.

"Not anything like that," Reynolds responded, adding that he could not give the exact figures.

Noting that the American mail lines now had contracts with the maritime commission to build several ships, Tobey asked if these could be sold at "a profit of $6,000,000 to $7,000,000."

"O, good Lord, no," Reynolds quickly replied. He explained that the government or navy could take over any ships from operators on a basis of cost, less depreciation.

REPLIES TO GILLETTE.

Cook county Democratic leaders said last night when they received a request from the senate campaign investigating committee for a report on contributions the letter had been forwarded to the downstate campaign committee, because the two groups keep their funds separate. This was in reply to Chairman Guy M. Gillette, [D. Ia.] of the senate committee who said in Washington yesterday he had some difficulty with the report from the Illinois state committee.

Therefore, when Senator Gillette telegraphed Arthur A. Sullivan of Chicago, the present chairman of the Illinois committee, asking for a statement of that body's receipts and expenditures, Sullivan forwarded the request to the committee's headquarters at Springfield, directing Miss Pauline Rithmiller, who was in charge there, to reply to Senator Gillette in his name, according to the Democratic leaders.

The records of the committee showed only transactions involving small sums, and Miss Rithmiller replied to the Gillette query with the facts as she knew them, it was said.

Two checks for $25,000 each had come in, but Chairman Sullivan, it was asserted, was not notified and they were not entered on the committee records. Instead, they were indorsed by Joseph E. Knight of Dow, secretary of the committee, and turned over to Attorney Charles E. Bliss of Taylorville, manager of the downstate campaign for Roosevelt and Hershey.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 10 [Special].—Mrs. George Earle, wife of the United States minister to Bulgaria, denied reports current in Philadelphia that a ring she has been wearing contains an emerald from the Bulgarian crown jewels. Rumors have it that Mr. Earle, who was the last Democratic governor of Pennsylvania, won the emerald from King Boris of Bulgaria on a pinball machine which the minister is reported to have had shipped to him from Philadelphia. Branding as false the rumor about her Christmas present, Mrs. Earle said: "I am sure the king and my husband are too busy to play a pinball machine."

BIG U. S. BOMBERS STEAL THE SHOW AT FLIVVER RACE

Hit Target from 10,000 Feet Over Miami Airport.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10.—The flivver parade swooped into this city's airport today to find that their sportsman flyer's race meeting had been changed into a demonstration of military air power at an army air base. Their 65 horsepower puddle jumpers were dwarfed by deadly navy dive bombers and 13 ton long range patrol planes that now make this field their home.

Instead of exhibitions by nonprofessional airmen the main events of the show were military. Service flyers demonstrated the dive bombing technique first perfected by the American navy but in the current war put to devastating use by the German air force and army. Then they showed how high altitude planes could drop missiles on Miami when virtually out of sight.

Stunting Is Military.

The racing in the little ships was entirely secondary. Even the stunt flying was military in character. As Don Stremmel, the announcer, informed the 8,000 Miamians and winter visitors who filled the stands, the stunting is part of the regular curriculum of every military pilot and the potential army flyers now being trained in the government's college pilot training schools.

Loops, rolls, inverted maneuvering and combinations of these basic stunts that once brought merely admiring gasps from spectators were silently studied by the watchers. Stremmel informed all that these were the tricks employed by British Hurricane and Spitfire flyers to beat off German air raiders over England.

Toy Skyline Is Target.

Target of the dive bombers was a cardboard replica of Miami's skyline erected half a mile east of the grandstands. The "enemy" was a squadron of nine biplane fighters. The high pitched whine of their motors, the earsplitting racket of their propellers as they rolled into 4,000 foot nearvertical dives was the first announcement of their coming.

Singly, in threes and finally en masse the little bulletlike ships slid down an invisible track to drop practice bombs on the "city." Realistic explosions, produced by an efficient ground crew sheltered in dugouts, and dense smoke completed the illusion.

The big army ships came and went all afternoon but gave one illustration of their tactics by dropping practice bombs to a white line ring on the field from about 10,000 feet. The Douglas B-18S planes, with a 96 foot wing spread and two 1,200 horse power motors, were mere specks but the black bombs, filled with water, hurtled down, striking in and around the target.

Two Races Run.

Between these events, which the services frankly consider educational for the public, the sportsmen managed to run off two races. First of these was a qualifying heat for the Firestone trophy. In the heat today all competing ships were Culver Cadets with 75 horse power Continental engines.

The little plane will make 140 miles an hour in straight flight but today's race was round a quadrangular two and a half mile course. The 50 mile an hour wind slowed them down and 114.7 miles an hour was the best time.

The winning ship was flown by Ted Thompson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Second was Danny Fowlie of Minneapolis, Minn., with 113.42 miles an hour; third was Wally Schanz of Atlanta, Ga., with 113.14 miles an hour; fourth, Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., 112.86 miles an hour, and fifth, Frank Trotman, Winston-Salem, N. C., 111.8 miles an hour.

The second race was for women, one lap over a 26 mile course. It was won by Edna Kidd of New Orleans who won the same race a year ago. Mrs. Kidd flew a Cadet and made a speed of 119.5 miles an hour. The rest finished in the following order: Catherine Rawls Thompson of Fort Lauderdale, in another Cadet; Virginia Snodgrass of Waterloo, Ia., in a Taylor Craft, and Arlene Davis of Detroit, Mich., in an Ercoupe.

CITIZEN MILITARY TRAINING COURSE OPENS AT U. OF C.

Two hundred fifty men last night began a special three month course in military science in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The course is sponsored by the Fort Sheridan Special C. M. T. C. Last night the men engaged in special drill, throwing of dummy grenades and rifle range practice.

Big Flying Boat to Cross Gulf to Havana on Survey Journey

New Orleans, La., Jan. 10 [Special].—At dawn tomorrow the huge flying boat Transatlantic of the American Export Airlines will take off from Lake Ponchartrain for a first survey flight to Havana, Cuba, 665 miles away.

The trip will be over an all-water route across the Gulf of Mexico, and at a leisurely speed is expected to take about six hours. Capt. Charles F. Blair Jr. will be the pilot in charge with a crew of seven. Aboard also will be James A. Fisk, representing the air carrier section of the Civil Aeronautics authority.

Flag Will Be Presented.

Capt. Blair will carry a flag of New Orleans to be presented to Juan Sabates, president of the Cuban chamber of commerce, in behalf of Robert L. Simpson, president of the New Orleans Association of Commerce.

The survey flight is the second of a series being sponsored by the American Export Airlines in a new aerial program designed, among other things, to give Chicago and the Mississippi valley better access to the Caribbean, Central America, and the Panama Canal Zone.

If the survey flight proves that a gulf route from New Orleans to Havana is feasible, as it is expected to be, and regular passenger service is established, Chicagoans will be able to have their dinner at home and breakfast in Havana. The entire trip would take approximately 10 hours.

Short Cut Routes Visioned.

The experimental trip is being made as part of American Export Airlines' record for its application with the CAA to establish fast, short cut routes across the Gulf of Mexico.

Last November the same flying boat made a round trip survey journey of 3,560 miles between New Orleans and Central America. The flying time was 26 hours and 45 minutes, covering six days. Pilots described the trip—made at the worst time of the year in that region—as being as simple as running a trolley car in Chicago.

The Transatlantic is similar to the naval patrol bomber. It has two Pratt and Whitney motors, each of 1,200 horse power, and is capable of a speed of 175 miles an hour.

JUDGE ASSERTS HE "FEELS LIKE PONTIUS PILATE"

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 10 (AP).—Federal Judge George A. Welsh declared today "I feel like Pontius Pilate" and then sentenced a 31 year old minister to a year and a day in prison for failing to register for the draft.

The minister, Arle Brook, heard the sentence with a smile after he told a crowd that packed the courtroom: "The United States is adopting a system of conscription which may produce tyranny instead of freedom. I am not evading the draft. I am opposing it. I am defending democracy. The people of America are filled with fear of an invasion. Are we so morally weak that the power of one man could control a 130 million free people?"

Judge Welsh told Brooks "I know you were motivated by your conscience," and added: "America is not normal today and you must be charitable to the rest of us.

"I must obey the law, no matter how much it hurts me, or even if it means my own life."

METHODIST BODY IN JAPAN TO GIVE UP ITS PROPERTY

TOKIO, Jan. 10 (AP).—The United Methodist mission has decided to deliver church property valued at approximately $100,000 to the Japanese Methodist church, it was learned authoritatively today.

It was decided also at an annual meeting that the mission would continue its work in Japan, even tho 45 American workers already have departed and 10 others plan to leave "because of the international situation." Seventy-five missionaries are remaining.

Foreign church officials disclosed in December that major American, British, and Canadian church properties, valued at millions of dollars, were in process of being turned over to the Japanese, as a result of a recent religious law.

JOE PENNER, 35, IS DEAD; FAMED RADIO COMEDIAN

Wife Finds Him Lifeless in Hotel Room.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 10 (AP).—Joe Penner, whose clowning on radio, stage, and screen made millions laugh, died today.

The 35 year old funmaker—he made "Wanna buy a duck?" and "You nasty man!" national bywords—was found dead in bed in his hotel near Philadelphia's Locust theater, where he had been playing the lead rôle in "Yokel Boy," a stage show.

Deputy Coroner Bernard Dugan said death apparently was due to a heart attack. However, an autopsy was ordered.

Wife Discovers Body.

Penner's wife found his body about 3:30 p. m. [Chicago time]. He had gone to bed about noon but had not complained of illness. Robert Crawford, general manager of "Yokel Boy," telephoned Mrs. Penner asking her to awaken Penner. She left the receiver off the hook, and went into the bedroom. In a moment she was back and screamed to Crawford: "Get a doctor at once!"

Mrs. Penner is the former Mae Vogt. She was a dancer in Joe's first New York show.

Crawford said that after the performance last night Martha Raye, the screen comedienne, who had come from New York to visit the Penners, went to a restaurant with them. When the Penners returned to their apartment, Joe telephoned Crawford at 3 a. m. and Crawford said he "seemed to be feeling fine and in the best of spirits." Penner remarked to Crawford, "Wasn't it a swell show tonight? The more I play the part the better I like it."

Born in Hungary.

Penner was born in a small town near Budapest, Hungary, on Nov. 11, 1905. His real name was Pinter. He was brought to this country when he was 9 years old and was taken to Detroit, Mich.

Penner started his theatrical career by entering amateur contests in Detroit, where his father was employed in a motor factory. For a time Joe himself worked first as a messenger and then as a clerk in the Ford factory.

His first real stage job was that of a mind reader's assistant. Several seasons in carnivals, burlesques, and vaudeville followed before Penner got his first break—a job in the Greenwich Village Follies at $375 a week in 1926. He made his first radio appearance on the Rudy Vallee program in 1933 and was an immediate success. Four weeks later he was given a show of his own and won popularity the first year.

He also appeared in several motion pictures.

G. O. P. GOVERNOR ELECT BARRED BY MO. LEGISLATURE

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 11, Saturday (AP).—The general assembly voted early today to keep Forrest C. Donnell, a Republican, out of the governor's chair and to set up a machinery for an investigation of last November's gubernatorial election.

By a vote of 101 to 78 the joint assembly adopted a majority committee report—drafted by Democrats—to certify the election of all last November's apparent winners except Donnell.

The adopted report will keep the governorship open until the assembly has had an opportunity to examine Democratic charges of "fraud," look into ballot boxes and determine the winner between Donnell and Lawrence McDaniel, Democrat, of St. Louis.

Six Democrats, three from each chamber, signed the report, based on preliminary investigation of returns, which gave Donnell a plurality of 3,613 over McDaniel. Four Republicans on the committee refused to sign the report.

GOV. TOWNSEND DENIES PAROLE TO STEPHENSON

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 10 (AP).—Gov. Townsend approved tonight a state clemency commission recommendation that D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana Ku Klux Klan grand dragon, be denied a parole from the life sentence on which he has served 15 years for the slaying of Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

"I have made it a policy to abide by my clemency commission's recommendations," Townsend said. "I am following it in this case."

Stephenson, who once was credited with having said, "I am the law in Indiana," was convicted in November, 1925. Miss Oberholtzer took poison on a trip to Hammond with Stephenson after he allegedly had raped her. She died after being brought back to Indianapolis. The state charged the klan leader with having failed to provide medical attention for her.

Since his conviction Stephenson has sought repeatedly to gain a new trial.

HELD IN ATTEMPTED RAPE.

Andrew F. Gallagher, 35 years old, 2232 Kenmore avenue, a discharged policeman recently employed as a park district laborer, was held to the grand jury on a charge of attempted rape by Judge Thomas A. Green in the Felony court yesterday.

JUDGE IGOE SUMMONS TRANSIT OFFICIALS TO GIVE ORDINANCE VIEWS

John M. Carmody.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe announced yesterday he will summon transit lines' representatives next week to report their attitude toward the proposed unified traction ordinance.

Judge Igoe's action followed the introduction Wednesday of the proposed ordinance into the city council. On the same day Mayor Kelly received a sharply worded letter from John M. Carmody, federal works administrator, asserting that Chicago's chronic traction delay is wasting money and time. Carmody demanded a prompt settlement.

M. L. Ramsey, a member of Carmody's staff, arrived in Chicago yesterday to follow up the works administrator's plea for action. Ramsey said he plans to talk with city and transit officials on points still blocking the unification. The federal works agency has made a 23 million dollar subway grant to Chicago on the condition that a unified traction company will be formed to operate the subway.

DEFENDS KILLING OF INVALID WIFE AS ACT OF MERCY

Kansas City, Kas., Jan. 10 (AP).—A railroad executive who said his invalid wife often "begged me to put her out of her misery" was arrested today after she was found in bed fatally wounded by a revolver bullet.

John E. Rockwell. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The husband, John E. Rockwell, 64, was charged with murdering his 62 year old wife, Elizabeth, to whom he had been married for 39 years. Rockwell is secretary-treasurer of the Kansas City, Kaw Valley, and Western railroad.

"I believed her disease to be incurable and I could not stand watching her suffer any longer," Rockwell was quoted by T. P. Palmer, Wyandotte county deputy attorney, as relating. "Without waking her I gently placed the muzzle against her head just behind the right ear and pulled the trigger."

CRIME FIGHTERS TO STUDY MURDER MYSTERY CASES

The Chicago Crime commission will expand its activities beginning next week in an effort to help solve Chicago's murders, it was announced yesterday. On Monday a trained investigator will be assigned to the coroner's office to inquire into all suspicious deaths and murders. He will attend all murder inquests.

R. W. Dvorak, assistant operating director of the crime commission, who announced the plan, said that 17 out of every 100 murders in Chicago go unsolved each year. This rate, he said, can be reduced by better supervision of inquests.

CHILDREN SCARED BY WPA MURAL IN AN IOWA LIBRARY

Forbidden by Parents to Enter Own Room.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 10.—Four years ago Harry D. Jones, an artist for the Iowa federal Work Projects administration, began painting a mural in the children's room at the Des Moines public library. Today—with the work only about two-thirds completed—several library officials asserted that the mural is grotesque and distorted, and frightens children to the extent that some of them have been forbidden by their parents to visit the library.

Jones is now head of the WPA art project in Iowa, employing 240 persons, about 50 of whom are engaged in easel and mural painting and sculpture. In 1936—while working independently on his own time—he painted a picture of a frozen horse which caused a furor in state-wide Iowa circles because of its morbidity.

One Section Painted Over.

This same morbidity, library officials said, is evident in portions of the children's room mural, which purports to show progressive stages in Iowa history. One section of the mural had to be painted over on the demand of library trustees, who regarded it as an unnecessary slur on the state.

This section pictured a lemon growing out of an acorn and was illustrative of the artist's conception that traffic development on the Des Moines river had failed and become a "lemon."

Children "a Little Scared."

"We don't know exactly what it means," said Miss Bernice Hadley, one of those in charge in the children's room. "It probably shows how the Indians take care of their own social problems. The children are a little scared, however, of the grim expression on the face of the kneeling old woman."

"Children ordinarily like pictures of Indians," said Miss Mae Anders, chief assistant librarian, "but they don't like this picture. The figures of the Indians are distorted and the whole scene is one of needless horror, particularly when it is considered that some of the boys and girls who come to the room are only 6 years old."

Third One a Puzzler.

The third panel is a puzzler to Miss Hadley and Miss Anders.

"It probably represents the types of settlers who came to Iowa," Miss Anders said, "but it certainly doesn't depict our children's ancestors in a flattering light. And the appearance of the cow and horse is, to say the least, brusque. Children don't know whether to laugh or cry when they look at this panel.

"The whole conception of the mural is grotesque. I detest it. It's not fit for a children's room. I have heard of parents who took one look at the mural and then told their children not to go back to the room. We wish Mr. Jones would clean up his mess so we could use the room for our regular programs."

Forrest Spaulding, chief librarian, said the mural has been criticized severely as being distorted.

"Of course it's an example of the modern cartoon school of art," he said, "and the criticisms have come from conservative artists."

Jones, according to other library attaches, is so busy with his work as head of the state art project that he doesn't put in more than a few hours a week on the mural. Miss Hadley told of an occasion when Jones' daughter, Belva, 5 years old, came with him to view the mural.

"She pointed at one group of Indians," Miss Hadley said, "and remarked, 'Aren't those funny looking animals, daddy?'"

BANDITS INVADE TWO STORES.

Two robbers, one armed, invaded two grocery stores within 15 minutes yesterday. In a store at 3001 South Drake avenue they took $12 and at 3158 South Kildare avenue they slugged Louis Dostal, 57, the proprietor, when he told them he had no money.

A ST. CHARLES INMATE FLEES ON SPORTS TRIP

A basketball game between teams from the St. Charles School for Boys and the Zion-Benton High school in Zion, provided the opportunity last night for a St. Charles inmate to escape. He is Arthur Crump, 19 years old, colored, whose home is on Lake street in Chicago.

Crump was a member of one of two teams from the St. Charles school taken to Zion by Coach K. M. Armstrong. Before game time the players retired to the basement to change into playing togs. Crump slipped out a door.

Police Chief Alven Ruesch was notified. Ruesch sighted the fugitive on the platform of the North Shore electric line at 25th street, but the latter fled into a field as Ruesch approached. A search for him was started in the area.

PARTY SUPPORT OF INDIANA VOTE CONTEST SOUGHT

Political Factors Cloud Recount Issue.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 10.—Forces of Glen R. Hillis, Republican, loser in the Nov. 5 election for governor, have set about winning over the Republican state central committee, which will decide Monday whether to support a proposed contest of the election of Henry F. Schricker, Democrat.

Wm. E. Jenner.

The legislature, overwhelmingly Republican and with the sole power under the Indiana constitution to conduct a contest, has received advance copies of a contest petition from former Judge Virgil E. Whitaker of Hammond. Whitaker has amassed voluminous evidence of voting by Lake county aliens Nov. 5.

Because of a variety of factors the action that will be taken by the state committee is now in doubt. Friends of Hillis believe that the committee cannot fail to back up the contest. Hillis lost by only 3,963, and the invalidation of returns from six Lake county precincts would make him the winner. There are twenty-five members of the committee.

Committee Backing Important.

Altho only the legislature has officially authority, the importance of the committee's decision was indicated today by William E. Jenner, president pro tem of the senate, who already is being mentioned as a candidate for governor in 1944.

Jenner, a leader in the new G. O. P. state administration, which is complete except for the governor, declared that he will regard the action of the state committee as binding upon the Republican majority in the legislature.

"After all, that's the only way the party has of speaking—thru its state central committee," Jenner said.

A faction of the party which is indifferent to Hillis is waiting to see which way the wind blows. This faction lost when Hillis was nominated in state convention, and has remained embittered over that defeat.

Aside from its influence upon the legislature, the committee holds the purse string on almost $30,000 remaining over from the campaign. Some of this money could be used to defray the cost of continuing Whitaker's roundup of evidence—a mammoth job which thus far has employed 40 investigators for five weeks.

Democratic Attitude Told.

Democrats, keenly aware of Republican differences over the proposed contest, professed to be unworried over the result. A high Democratic official who said he could not permit use of his name set forth his party's attitude as follows:

1. Public opinion would not stand for the unseating of Schricker, who will be inaugurated Monday, and many Republicans do not want to risk incurring the ire of the voters, with an eye to the 1942 elections.

2. Republicans now taking state office can get along well with Schricker, judging by four years of experience with him as lieutenant governor, and rely upon his coöperation in carrying out their legislative program.

3. If the worst comes to worst, the Democrats are prepared to open up mudslinging guns at Hillis.

Hillis has said that he has only indirect knowledge of the investigation paving the way for a contest. It was recalled, however, that he has avoided congratulating Schricker.

Hillis and Arch N. Bobbitt, anti-Hillis chairman of the state committee, issued a joint statement announcing that Whitaker and his evidence will go before the committee. Several in the anti-Hillis group said they were cool toward the contest for fear it would harm his popularity.

Mayor Leaves to Join His Family in Florida Home

Seek Superroads

How Cook county would be covered by system of superhighways, enabling measure for which has been prepared for submission to legislature.

TOLL SUPERROAD BILL IS DRAFTED FOR COOK COUNTY

222 Mile Link Would Cost 285 Millions.

BY HAL FOUST.

Enabling legislation has been drafted for the construction of a 222.2 mile system of Cook county toll superhighways, the cost of which is estimated at 285 million dollars.

A copy of a bill, to be introduced at Springfield this month, was made public yesterday by Maj. George A. Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent.

The proposed law would create a highway authority—a quasi public corporation—which would build, maintain, and operate toll roads. For the initial construction the authority could issue bonds, not to exceed 30 million dollars, to be retired with toll collections.

Tolls Put at 10 and 25 Cents.

The contemplated toll would be 10 cents for passenger cars and 25 cents for trucks. Quinlan said the estimated revenue would be adequate to pay for the bonds in 15 years. The retirement period would be 40 years, however, so revenue in excess of the long term bond requirements could be used to extend the system.

The highway authority would consist of one man, the superintendent of highways for counties of more than 300,000 population [meaning Cook county]. His activities would be supervised by the county board. The bill provides that, at the request of the city council, agreements could be made for the authority to build and to operate toll roads within Chicago.

Modeled After N. Y. Laws.

The bill is modeled after laws under which toll roads have been built and operated in the New York metropolitan area.

The layout of the 222.2 mile system is the same as was developed last year. The city council, it may be recalled, approved a plan for 62.2 miles of superhighway routes radiating from the loop to the city limits. The cost of these city routes was estimated at 205 million dollars, with an initial construction program of 30 miles estimated to cost 95 millions.

A few months later the county board proposed a system of 160 miles of superhighways outside of Chicago, estimated to cost 80 million dollars. The routes would be extensions of the Chicago radials to the county limits.

Measure Held Invalid.

It originally was planned to finance the construction by sale of bonds to be retired by one-half of the county's and the city's gas tax revenues for the next 20 years. The 1939 legislature authorized such a financial setup, but the Illinois Supreme court held that the legislation was unconstitutional, mainly because it imposed an obligation without referendum approval.

After this decision the council and the county board voted to proceed with superhighway construction on a pay-as-you-go basis, with the state, county, and city spending current revenue from the gas tax. The purpose of the new financial setup is to expedite construction with revenue from the sale of bonds and revenue from toll collections.

Quinlan said he believed the new authority would be qualified to receive financial help from the federal government.

Copies of the bill are being submitted to leading civic bodies for criticism.

Thieves' Loot in Chicago in 1940 Set at $2,670,865

Cash taken during the year totaled $834,057 of which $54,743 was recovered. Other loot was valued at $2,168,116, of which $276,565 worth was returned to its owners.

REVEAL HOLDERS OF TICKETS FOR GREEN INAUGURAL

Total Limited to 5,452 by Size of Armory.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10 [Special].—An answer to the universal question in Springfield all this week was found today when a reporter gained possession of a tabulation showing the allotment of seats for the state inauguration ceremonies in the state armory here next Monday.

"Who's got the seats?" was the question that inevitably wound up a search for tickets that reached its height with the convening of the new general assembly last Wednesday and has continued unabated. The demand is the greatest ever witnessed here because of the return of the Republicans to power.

Room for 5,200 Seats.

Tormented officials say that the crowd would be big enough to pack the Chicago Stadium if it could be moved here, and add mournfully that the state armory, where the ceremonies will be held, will not hold more than the 5,200 seats for which tickets have been printed, allotted and distributed. There just won't be any more, they insist.

While there have been some changes since the schedule was adopted originally, some of the principals in the show having been deprived of some tickets with the presentation of new requests that had to be recognized. The tabulation revealed today shows there was difficulty in making the supply go around as first planned.

Green Heads List.

There will be 180 seats on the stage, 2,750 on the main floor, and 2,522 in the balcony of the armory. These were apportioned as follows:

Two stage seats were assigned to each of the following officials of the Republican organization—Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman; Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committeewoman; Ben L. Berve, chairman of the state committee; John T. Dempsey, chairman of the Cook county committee; Mrs. Mary Silvis, head of the women's division of the state committee; Mrs. F. W. ONE JUDGE FINES WOMAN, ANOTHER GIVES HER PRAISE

Two judges made rulings yesterday which bewildered Miss Mary Sullivan, 28 years old, 3022 Broadway, a waitress. She was charged with driving without a license after she was found at the wheel of a stalled automobile in the loop Thursday. Her companion, John Atella, 32, of 4947 Medill street, a waiter and owner of the car, was asleep and Miss Sullivan said she was driving because he had been drinking.

Said Judge John Gutknecht in the Traffic court:

"You've got to have a license to drive, no matter what excuse. The fine will be $5 and $1 costs."

Said Judge John T. Zuris in South State street court a few minutes later as he dismissed a charge of disorderly conduct against Atella:

"It would have been unsafe for him to drive, Miss Sullivan. You should be commended for what you did."

SUFFOCATED IN HOTEL ROOM.

W. C. Mahoney, 38 years old, 2506 East 78th street, Chicago, a salesman, died of suffocation yesterday when fire enveloped his room in the La Salle hotel at South Bend, Ind. Police said he apparently had fallen asleep while smoking.

THE SUPERSTATE AND THE SUBJECT.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his budget message, told congress that he questioned the significance of the statutory debt limit. It was only a legislative act and if congress made appropriations in excess of it these appropriations made it null and void. In short, the statutory limitation was only a "fiscal monitor." It may be added that it is a monitor whose admonitions had no effect before the war started in Europe and are futile now in the clang of our military preparations.

When Mr. Roosevelt as a first term candidate, in 1932, told the people that a continuance of the fiscal system of debt and deficits would fill the land with closed shops and the streets with idle men seeking work, he was criticizing a President whose record of expenditures he was soon to throw into complete eclipse. But then he may not have had so clearly in his mind the uses to which a fiscal deficit policy could be put. He may then not even have had a glimmer of so complete a makeover of the American social, political, and economic structure as later was urged upon him by the advisers to whom he gives most attention.

When he saw ruin in the national debts and deficits he may not have seen in that ruin the structural material for his planned society, in which finance and industry became socialized. The planners who have guided his thought realized that the tendency toward governmental control of production impelled by borrowing and spending in excess of income would be accelerated by war. Debt and war together might make socialization unescapable. These two factors, insolvency and war ravages, created the dictatorships of Europe.

The stress of war is leading Great Britain in that direction. Every week new controls are set up. A few days ago Mr. Churchill's government created three new executive bodies to deal with production, imports, and postwar reconstruction. In the official announcement it was said that these executives will get broad authority to do what they like with raw materials, with factories, and workshops. With this authority labor may be allocated where it is needed, which means that men will work where they are told to work. They may do so willingly as a contribution to the nation's defense. They may be unable to do anything else after the war.

If there were no influences in the United States which had worked upon Mr. Roosevelt to create a new era of governmental controls the events in themselves might have created conditions in which only the greatest prudence and intelligence could protect free society. The dominating influences have conspired to usher in this era of the superstate and the submissive subject. American liberties are in greater danger from forces here than anywhere else.

SPEAKING OF FIREWORKS.

In the Voice of the People this morning is a note from Dr. Harry S. Gradle, a director of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, thanking THE TRIBUNE for its advocacy of the sane Fourth bill in the present session of the legislature. If the bill is enacted it ought to save a good many children from having their eyes blown out and their fingers blown off, and it ought, also, to prevent the loss of a good deal of money in July 4 fires.

There is, as we said before, every reason why this bill should be enacted and none why it should be defeated, but the fact that it is being presented at this time is not without its irony. Some good people in Illinois are devoting time and energy to saving a few dozen eyes and fingers and some thousands of dollars in annual property damage, and at the same time other people in Illinois and elsewhere are doing all in their power to push this country into war. If the war party has its way a million young Americans may be killed within a year or two, many hundreds of eyes, arms, and legs will be blown to pieces, and more money than anybody ever heard of will be burned up in the furnace of war. Just one year of war will cost more money than would be needed to buy all the land and build all the buildings in Chicago, New York, and half a dozen more metropolitan cities.

That doesn't mean that we do not need the fireworks law, but it does mean that this and every other humanitarian measure like it are saving at the spigot at a time when the war mongers are trying to knock the bottom out of the barrel.

NAMES FOR A TRAINING CAMP.

There has been no little objection in Illinois to the fact that the camp where the National Guard of this state is to receive its training is named after an estimable but undistinguished former governor of Tennessee. Tennessee got the camp site but it is argued not without logic that Illinois should get some recognition in the naming of it.

The probable desire of the war department to avoid duplicate nomenclature would bar some of the greater martial figures in Illinois history. There are already Camps Grant and Logan and, for the general who was adopted in the affections of Chicago, Fort Sheridan. But Illinois can offer the name of Gen. John A. McClernand, a civil war officer who has been denied the recognition due him, and a Democrat too; the names of the gallant cavalrymen Farnsworth and Grierson, and of a dozen other heroes of campaigns in Tennessee.

A most appropriate name for the camp would be that of Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., who commanded the Illinois division in France.

A writer to the Voice of the People some days ago suggested that the camp be given the name of a Tennesseean who sat in the White House, James K. Polk. That also might be considered appropriate. Mr. Polk was the first President to present congress with a full-fledged war and ask the conscript fathers what they intended to do about it.

THE BENTON TEST AND SOME OTHERS.

William B. Benton, vice president of the University of Chicago, is destined to be a greatly misunderstood man. He suggested the other day a test by which any one can decide for himself whether the aid to be extended to Britain is a loan or a gift. If it is really a loan, said Mr. Benton, there should be no objection to accepting as security for it the treasures of the British museum. When the loan is repaid, the Elgin marbles, the originals of Magna Charta, the Keats letters, the Shakespeare folios, the primitive Greek sculptures, and the other shiploads of art objects, and manuscripts, and books would be returned.

Mr. Benton is going to be told that he is a wicked man to advocate robbing a nation of its most priceless possessions at a time like this. Mr. Benton didn't recommend any such course. He said merely that any one who thinks that the proposed advances are to be loans ought not to get excited if the borrower and the lender behave as borrowers and lenders generally do—by asking and giving a pledge of repayment. If the loan is to be repaid, there will be no "robbery."

He might have gone farther. A great many people in this country have very strong opinions about the positive rôle the United States should play in the war. Some of them want us to get into the war as soon as possible. Others say they are willing that this country take the gravest risks of involvement.

These people might well ask themselves what kind of a peace we are striving for. Collaterally, they might ask themselves what chance we have of getting it if we win. Having answered these questions they might go on to inquire how many Americans it is worth while to kill to attain our end; and, finally, whether with only that expenditure we can reasonably expect to achieve our victory.

Any one who says we ought to go to war or ought to take grave risks of going to war must have the answers to these questions in his mind. He must know what we are to fight for and have decided what victory will cost. He must, that is, if he is rational. If he is merely angry, merely emotional, merely craving for something to do to relieve his nervous tension, he will brush the questions aside as irrelevant, impertinent, or something else.

A sensible man, seeking to determine a policy, examines the alternatives with a view to the probabilities of loss and gain. That is what the good business man does when he decides whether to make a new product; what the good doctor does when he decides whether to operate; what the good lawyer does when he decides whether to sue. So far as possible, wishes are removed from the calculation. Any one who is not willing to examine the question of peace or war in this same spirit is not behaving as a sensible man. He is letting his emotions command him.

THE LEGION AND THE DRAFT.

The American Legion is sponsoring amendments to the present draft law which would give the United States a system of universal military training. The present law takes men between the ages of 21 and 35; the Legion thinks the age limits should be 18 to 21.

The proposal is a sound one, but it has met with opposition from the administration. If we must have a large army and a large corps of trained reserves available for duty in war, it is obviously better to take men when they have few responsibilities and are not difficult to replace in industry. The older men learn more slowly, find it more difficult to adjust themselves to the hardships of military life and, of course, will be available as reserves for a much shorter period of time.

The Legion has a splendid record of consistency in this matter. It has long favored a system of universal military education and advocated it during the years when many of the hysterical war shouters of today were denouncing the idea as dangerous and preposterous. The Legion was smeared as the instrument of reaction and the voice of militarism in a world from which war had been eliminated.

Times have changed. The pacifists of a few years ago are now howling for blood. They are outraged at the fact that this country today lacks a large body of men trained for army duty. The war shouters today have come to see that the policy advocated by the Legion [and, we might add, by THE TRIBUNE] was sound. Perhaps after a few hundred thousand Americans have been killed in Europe the war shouters will awaken to the fact that it would have been better to avoid foreign military adventures. That policy, also, was advocated for many years by the Legion [and, we might add, by THE TRIBUNE].

Editorial of the Day

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

Writing in the New York Times, Stephen G. Rich protests valiantly against certain current American literary usages, among them being "breakdown" [used in the sense of "analysis"], "the above," "of from," "of between," and "and/or." He also protests against the American habit of using herr, signor, señor, monsieur, and their abbreviations for "the good American term 'Mr.'"

While applauding Mr. Rich's crusade, we don't expect to see it succeed. American usage is confirmed in its illogical ways and is not amenable to dictated changes. A ship news report in the New York Times will refer to the arrival of M. and Mme. Henri Falguère, insisting upon "M. and Mme." instead of simply "Mr. and Mrs." but leaving off the grave accent on the first e in their name. . . .

Concerning the use of Mr., Mrs., and other honorifics, the the Evening Sun occasionally does use herr when referring to a prominent goosestepper, we're generally in agreement with Mr. Rich on that point. In fact, we advocate not only the use of the existing trio of Mr., Mrs., and Miss, but the use of an additional title to designate a bachelor, to wit: Mark, abbreviated Mk. We tossed that idea out in an attempt to be helpful during 1940, but the world was too close to a breakdown [in the sense of "breakdown"] to pay any attention.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

WITH A SIGH OF RELIEF.

Another week-end coming up, and welcome. The start of 1941 has filled us with a strong urge to return to our ivory tower and saw off the staircase behind us.

* * *

The propaganda for saving the world that litters our desk, and now goes into the wastebasket, reminds us of a hideaway that we had in earlier movements for the world's salvation, say about 1920. Our newspaper office was on the bank of the south branch, and we needed a pied-à-terre on Michigan avenue, so a friend invited us to park a typewriter in his office, which was used only for clipping coupons. We often nipped into this cubbyhole to jot down a fleeting inspiration.

Came a day when we found our retreat filled with tons of printed matter and strange guys with round heads and pale eyes. When we wanted to know what went on there, our friend who paid the rent, with an expression of ecstasy on his jolly, capitalistic face, answered:

"This office is now headquarters for the Friends of Central Europe, who propose to set up republics in Poland, Bohemia, Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia."

We felt that the art of literature could not compete with such a tremendous enterprise, so we picked up our typewriter and moved out, never to return. In recent years we have begun to wonder if that wasn't the place where the idea of the Polish corridor was cooked up.

* * *

For week-end reading: Well, let's try "The Giant Joshua," a large new novel about the sex life of Mormon wives, and "Sad Cypress," a mystery tale about Hercule Poirot, the Belgian mastermind, by Agatha Christie.

A YOUNG BARBARIAN SPEAKS.

Have you ever heard tell of my Aunt Elisa?
She never catches cold—she catches a coryza.
No one has "his appendix out"; that wouldn't be correct o' me,
As Auntie always says, "He underwent an appendectomy."
And she can turn a barber shop into a place "tonsorial."
Ah, oui . . . the lady's full of such-like stiff and quaint surprises;

Referred to Wine and Food Society.

My downtown trip takes me thru the section in which "chitterlings" and "neck bones" appear frequently in the advertising scenery. You doubtless know all about them, but did you ever hear of a "salt snout"? They retail at about the same price as "neck bones." J. G. D.

GHOSTS OF BARBIZON.

[Robert Louis Stevenson, 1850-'94.]

The pans are brazen bright, the courtyard clean,
Hard by, Fontainebleau forest's oaken green
Awakes the artist to a glorious dawn.
Tho wooden shoes and horny hands have plowed
And gleaned these fields with peasant-laden weight,
What nature gave and history endowed
For where Millet begat and Corot thrilled,
The landscape knew of royal coachwheels, too;
Where Rosa Bonheur watched the teams afield,
Old masters, kings and popes held rendezvous.
And here dreamed deep on romance and success,
That lanky, ardent idler, R. L. S.

It all depends, of course, upon the purpose of the wink. But the Bell Telephone laboratories, putting aside all frivolous aspects of the question, say that a wink is winked in 11/100ths of a second.

PLANTAR WARTS AND THEIR RELIEF.

DESPITE the oft repeated adage that warts come from the handling of toads, it is pretty well agreed that a virus infection is responsible. Those on the soles [the plantar variety] may arise because of much parading around the house in bare feet or because adequate protection is not provided in public locker rooms, shower baths, and dressing rooms.

Victims realize that the presence of these blemishes is not a laughing matter. The pressure points which they produce may be so painful that walking is impossible and confinement to one's room or even bed may become necessary. These affairs may be mistaken for calluses and, not infrequently, a hard, horny layer will form about the wart or even cover its center. Small reddish or brownish dots seen thru a callus represent the position of tiny blood vessels within one of these growths.

The question of relief ofttimes is puzzling. Sometimes the "bumps" will disappear spontaneously—as they may from the hands. Occasionally a change in footgear or of hose, wearing cotton instead of wool or silk, will hasten their departure. Massaging daily with castor oil may prove helpful.

Some spectacular results have followed the employment of the whirlpool bath, wherein softening and swelling of the lesions—brought about by the forceful swirling of a stream of warm water—has caused them to extrude. After two or three such treatments they can be removed with the fingers or a pair of tweezers without the slightest pain. Only small pit marks remain and these may vanish within two or three weeks. Each session requires 30 minutes to one hour.

While there are scores of corrective, varying from the injection of caustics or acids to the application of radium or X-ray—no single procedure will be effective in every instance. There will be no failures no matter what regimen is utilized, and it may be desirable to alternate the methods rather than to use more of the same thing.

Should X-ray be resorted to, it is rarely wise to repeat a large dose in the same area. Destruction of the tissues may ensue, with actual injury to the circulation. There seems to be no risk, however, from a single sizable exposure, particularly if the spot is not more than one-half inch in diameter. When fractional quantities of radiation are given, repeated courses may be administered without danger.

In a recent report by Marks and Franseen, mention is made of 158 cases managed largely with radium. Of these, 15 received but one exposure; 26, two; and 8, three or more. While a complete census of all the patients was not possible, the assumption is that three-quarters were assisted. Of this group, a few later had recourse to X-ray therapy, and only two of these were improved.

A word of caution should be uttered for the benefit of those who have been unable to obtain a cure with either radium or X-ray. Each physician in turn should be informed accurately concerning the therapy which has been used previously. Unless this is done, radiation may be adopted unwittingly by the second or third doctor, with unfortunate consequences.

After all, plantar warts may become so annoying that almost any price will be offered for a remedy. We should recall that what will be valuable with one will not aid another. These puzzling protuberances are so located on weight bearing surfaces that a goodly amount of trouble is inevitable.

THE DRAFTING OF MARRIED MEN.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—I believe that if they are drafting married men, all of them, with the exception of those with families or whose wives are not able to work, should be drafted. Why should we [and I believe I speak for most working wives] be called upon to sacrifice more? Don't think we would rather punch a time clock every day than stay home and enjoy ourselves. Most of us aren't working for the extra clothes we can buy. We have had responsibilities thrown upon us and the extra income is necessary.

Let this sacrifice of giving up our husbands for a year [setting them back that length of time in their businesses] be asked of all wives who are capable of working. DOROTHY BELL.

ON RETURNING TO COLLEGE.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 8.—The ride down here on the 11:00 o'clock Illinois Central Student Special was as eventful as usual. If it's not the students acting up, it's the I. C. service. Last night it was both. For two hours we waited at 53d street in Chicago while our trainmen fixed a broken steam connection. Soon we all donned our overcoats, while some of the students built bonfires out of TRIBUNES in the aisle to warm their hands.

Liquor flowed. Three or four of the fellows could have tested for 8 below. Of course the one acceptable girl in our coach [ratio, 20 men to each girl] was swamped with attention. A military twerp got her.

Due at 1:30, we arrived in dear Champaign at 4:00 a. m.

Thanks to the I. C. for a full evening, but next time I'm taking the bus. Quicker, cheaper. RAYMOND J. CHAPELLE.

LADIES AT THE BULLFIGHT.

Shumway, Ill., Jan. 8.—I was in Mexico City last winter but did not attend the bullfights. Every woman I met there had gone at least once. In Sanborn's restaurant every Monday it was the gentle gray-haired American women who discussed yesterday's bullfight with lively interest. One dear old lady said to me: "I got the kick of my life out of it."

Christianity has had the green light for centuries. There were enough Christians in Germany and Italy to overrule the unjust actions of a few un-Christian rulers, but no one wanted the martyr's crown even tho they did praise it highly in church on Sundays.

A world ruled by the principles of mercy and reason is not for us. We are unworthy of it. If we were we would have it. We overestimate our better selves. A. M. PEEL.

HE WANTS TO HELP.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 4.—Words are incapable of expressing my deep appreciation of the efforts of Gen. Wood, Col. Lindbergh, Verne Marshall, and others to keep this country from taking the last fatal step necessary to active belligerence. Use my name if you need to and inform me of any way I can aid you in our common cause. L. J. PRITCHARD.

Instructor in Economics, University of Illinois.

EVERYBODY INSULTED.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The "short of war" twaddle emanating from Washington is an insult to the intelligence of every thinking person, those who think we should go into the war as well as those of us who definitely think we should not. Everything that is being said or done by the powers that be is unmistakably hostile, and every high school student knows where we are going.

Japan, Italy, Germany, and Russia have been severely [and justly] criticized by us for committing hostile acts against other nations without formal declaration of war. Why don't we get honest with ourselves and declare war on the axis powers?

We know first hand that European wars settle nothing. For fear of a long standing peace, allowing a bit of brotherly love to creep in, the war lords have kept alive the vicious cycle of race hatred breeding war and war breeding race hatred.

If it is democracy we would preserve, or rather reëstablish, we had better diligently catch up with our home work.

ALICE F. BALDWIN.

UNRECONSTRUCTED.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia desires to give total aid to Britain so that the latter may "wipe Germany off the map." Of course the southern senator, coming from a former slave holding state, remembers that the German immigrants made up the bulk of the armies of Hooker, Thomas, Grant, Sherman, and the other Union generals in the civil war. These German boys supported Abraham Lincoln thruout the civil war. Glass knows that these German boys of 1861-'65 in the Union armies wiped the "Confederate States of America" off the map at a time when his friends, the British, were doing their very utmost to place the "Confederate States of America" on the map.

HENRY WHARTON.

HE WANTS TO LEARN A TRADE.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—I am a young man, 18 years old, and have been out of school for a year and a half. I do not know a trade and just recently I went to the public night schools to find out about the mechanical courses which they offer.

When I went to investigate I was told that there would be no more night shops in auto mechanics or tool and die, etc., the reason being that the government has put men in these shops.

Could you tell me how a young man is supposed to learn a trade when this takes place?

THE RAID ON THE BUND.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A few days ago one of our local law enforcement agencies raided a department of the German-American bund. I want to know what happened to this investigation. Why was it dropped so suddenly? If there are criminals, spies, saboteurs, etc., in the German-American bund the American people should be informed. If there are no traitors in this organization the American people must be told. CHICAGOAN.

UNAPPRECIATIVE.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Nothing burns me up more than when I see a woman accept the seat a gentleman offers her on the "L" and doesn't even bother to thank him for it. Not only that, but she usually gives him that, well—I-am-entitled-to-it look.

THE CARE OF THE INSANE.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I read in the paper this morning a very interesting article calling attention to the inadequate provision of doctors and nurses at the state hospitals for the insane. I note that no mention is made of the possibility of reducing the number of patients retained in institutions, perhaps the number of those committed, by an increase in the social service staff.

Under the statute it has been possible to pay the board of patients outside the institution. Advantage has not been fully taken of this provision and can be properly taken only with an adequate staff of social workers. It is to be hoped that under the new administration greater attention will be called to this possibility of reducing the intramural population and greatly increasing the number of those who, in safety and happiness, are cared for outside.

SOPHONISBA P. BRECKENRIDGE.

FOUR WEEKS AND NO PAY.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—On Dec. 2 my son was notified by the United States marine reserve that he would be called to active duty on Dec. 5. He reported at Great Lakes on that date, was given an examination and found physically unfit for service due to deafness in one ear. After being held for 28 days he was discharged and told he would receive no pay from the government for the time he was held at Great Lakes. He was compelled to give up his position during this time and was left without any income. My husband and I helped our son as much as we could, but we cannot understand why the government does not pay the men who have been called to duty even tho they are found unfit. Fortunately my son was able to return to his old position, but how about the men who found their old jobs filled? MRS. ROSE KOCH.

THE SANE FOURTH BILL.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—As a director of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness I want to thank you for the editorial on the fireworks law which came out in Monday's TRIBUNE. We are very, very grateful to THE TRIBUNE for the help it is giving us on this piece of legislation.

HARRY S. GRADLE,

SUIT UNDER DRAM ACT.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On July 4th in a tavern on the south side after buying liquor in the place, and after a dispute, my son walked outside and was killed on the sidewalk in front of the place by the bouncer. I would like to know [1] if I can bring suit against the tavern under the "dram act."

2. How should I go about it? M. A.

1. Yes.
2. Employ an attorney.

To guard against any suspicion of favoritism we have adopted the rule of never supplying the names of attorneys. If you have favorable contact with an attorney we suggest that you get in touch with him.

The Chicago Bar association under a new reference plan is ready to give you the name of a lawyer who has agreed to charge not over $3 for a first half hour interview. Apply in person at the Chicago Bar association, 29 S. La Salle street, 11th floor.

DOUGLAS TO TAKE ECONOMY DRIVE TO LEGISLATURE

Campaign Will Continue, Alderman Says.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Ald. Paul Douglas [5th], whose suggestions for economies in the 1941 city operating budget were voted down by the council, said last night his economy campaign is not going to stop.

On Thursday the council approved a budget of $54,300,000, two million less than last year. Savings of a half million dollars will be effected thru elimination of jobs. Another half million will be saved thru pay cuts applied against 2,500 workers getting $3,000 or more annually, and the other million will be saved in various other ways.

"The council voted me down when I objected to the city clerk keeping $18,000 he receives each year from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses in Chicago," Douglas said. "I'm going to take that objection to the legislature."

Allowed to Keep Fees.

Douglas told the council Thursday that City Clerk Ludwig Schreiben is permitted under state law to retain fees paid him by the state for the sale of the licenses. The city clerk receives 10 cents for each fishing license sold within the city limits, and 25 cents for each hunting license.

Douglas quoted official records showing the city clerk received $18,699 from license sales in 1937; $18,198 in 1938, and $19,737 in 1939. In addition, his salary is $8,000 annually.

An investigation yesterday showed that Schreiber pays one man from the fee money to handle the license sales. All records of the sales and business connected with them are handled in his private office, L. D. Schreiber & Co., 110 North Franklin street. In addition one clerk in the city clerk's office devotes part of his time to selling the licenses in that office. That clerk is paid by the city.

"I am going to ask the council at its next meeting to request the legislature to change the law so that $18,000 will go to the city where it belongs," Douglas said. "If I fail there I shall ask a member of the legislature to introduce an amendment to the law."

Wins Partial Victory.

Douglas was conceded a partial victory at the budget meeting when the aldermen voted to include secretarial jobs in the budget under that title and pay them $2,400 a year. It has been the custom for aldermanic secretaries to be buried in the pay rolls of the street department where they did no street work but confined their activities to the aldermen's work. Douglas suggested the salaries be $1,500 yearly.

Douglas was talked down by Mayor Kelly when he suggested the $75,000 mayor's contingent fund be cut to $25,000. Mayor Kelly told him every item spent was accounted for in the controler's records.

Mayor Kelly will take an $1,800 cut on his own salary of $18,000. The same 10 per cent slash will also be applied to the members of his cabinet. The members, and their salaries before the economy budget went thru, are: Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, $10,000; Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel, $15,000; Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, $12,000; James P. Allman, police commissioner, $10,000; Michael J. Corrigan, fire commissioner, $10,000, and Robert B. Upham, controler, $15,000.

On the request of Ald. John S. Boyle [16th], Subway Commissioner Philip Harrington was directed to furnish the aldermen a detailed pay roll record. Boyle protested when the budget showed $23,671,000 to be spent on subways and the traction ordinance from the traction fund with no pay roll accounting.

He read the following list of monthly salaries to the council:

	Mthly. rate.
William Sexton, asst. corp. counsel	$1,875
James J. Danaher, asst. corp. counsel	625
James G. Skinner, asst. corp. counsel	833
Barrett O'Hara, asst. corp. counsel	625
Charles E. De Leuw, consulting engr.	1,042
R. F. Kelker, chief engineer	1,500
Ralph H. Burke, subway engineer	1,250
Philip Harrington	1,667

Boyle said he is going to push an investigation of the subway department pay roll. "It should have been listed in the budget as other employés are," he asserted.

CASSIDY FETED AT DINNER; QUITS POST NEXT WEEK

Attorney General John E. Cassidy of Peoria, who will return to private law practice next Monday, was guest of honor at a testimonial banquet in the Chicago Towers club last night. Attending were federal, county, and city judges and officials, besides close friends from downstate.

Included in the program of entertainment at the banquet was a loud speaker which frequently cut in with results of races at the Santa Anita race track. Last December Cassidy filed a blanket suit in the St. Clair county Circuit court against handbook betting.

Cassidy will be succeeded in office by George F. Barrett, who was elected on the Republican ticket last November.

COUNTY BACK TAX PLAN BRINGS IN 8 MILLION TOTAL

Cook county's special tax foreclosure plan, started two years ago, has brought in $8,250,164 in back taxes, Marshall Kearney, assistant state's attorney, reported yesterday. Tax sales involved 2,319 properties, on which $11,083,757 was owing.

Sales proceeds represent 75 per cent of the back taxes that were due. Under the plan, minimum bids for delinquent properties are guaranteed to the state's attorney before he starts a foreclosure suit. The bids usually are made by the owners themselves.

COUNTY WORKS ON NEW WAY TO GET BACK TAXES

Surveys Delinquency in Four Areas.

A study of new methods for collecting $403,142,685 in Cook county taxes delinquent over a period of 12 years will be begun next week, County Treasurer John Toman announced yesterday. Meanwhile county department heads were warned again that the other major financial problem—the trimming of $21,176,416 in estimated expenditures for 1941 down to the expected income of $17,500,000—may necessitate wage slashes for the county's 6,000 employés.

The treasurer's office is completing a tax delinquency survey in four areas—the loop, Barrington, Western Springs, and Chatham Fields. Andrew J. Kolar, assistant treasurer, said that efforts will be made to find out each delinquent taxpayer's problem in these areas and to work out plans for payment of the arrears.

Will Interview Delinquents.

After the survey Kolar expects to interview some 300 large loop property owners who are delinquent in real estate taxes. Then 30 employés will interview the delinquent taxpayers in the other three areas. The methods worked out will be extended later to other tardy taxpayers thruout the county.

Toman, supported by the Chicago Association of Commerce, had asked the Circuit court judges help committee for permission to hire 42 more employés to aid in this work, but the judges turned down the request.

Delinquent real estate taxes, dating to 1928, now total $139,352,999. Uncollected personal property taxes total $258,131,972 and uncollected railroad taxes $5,657,714.

The warning of a possible wage slash for all the county's employés was given by Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and Commissioner Dan Ryan, acting chairman of the board's finance committee. County Assessor John S. Clark and County Clerk Michael J. Flynn already have announced they will take a voluntary 10 per cent reduction in the estimated appropriations for their offices.

Must Have Coöperation.

"We'll have to have the coöperation of all department heads," Smith said. "We don't want to cut salaries if we can help it, but it may be inevitable."

Smith and Ryan said they were both willing to take 10 per cent cuts in their own salaries, and believed most of the other 12 commissioners would feel likewise. The 15th commissioner, H. Wallace Caldwell, died recently and the vacancy has not been filled.

Smith's salary is $12,000 a year and each of the other commissioners receives $7,500 annually. If all of them took the 10 per cent cut, the yearly saving would be $10,950.

Suggests Judges Do Likewise.

"Once before—in 1932—the commissioners took salary cuts," Smith said. "Later, they said these cuts were illegal because they are elected officers and their salaries are set by statute, and they got the money back. The proper thing to do would be for the commissioners to take their full salaries and then voluntarily turn back 10 per cent. The judges of the Circuit and Superior courts should follow the same procedure, at least on the portion of their salaries paid by the county."

There are 48 judges, each receiving annually $7,500 from the county and $7,500 from the state. If they each took a 10 per cent cut on the county salary, there would be an annual saving of $36,000.

The county board finance committee will hold its first budget meeting Monday.

SCHOOLS WARNED NEW LEVIES MAY RUIN TAX SYSTEM

Told Budget Plans Will Cut Down Receipts.

Warnings that increased tax loads for Chicago and Cook county property owners will result in increasingly smaller collections, accentuate the movement of the population out of the city and county, and possibly cause the tax system to "collapse of its own weight" were given to members of the school board yesterday during a public hearing on the 1941 school budget in the city council chambers.

Newton C. Farr.

Typical of the opinions expressed by representatives of nearly 50 civic organizations, women's clubs, taxpayer groups, and Parent-Teacher associations was the statement of Newton C. Farr, vice president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency.

Cites Proposed Boost.

Citing the proposal to increase current expenditures this year $1,055,000 over the 1940 figure and the bill introduced in the state legislature this week which would authorize an increase of $4,000,000 in the educational fund pegged levy, Farr said:

"It is our firm conviction that every substantial addition to the Chicago property tax load will result in decreased real estate tax collections. Such additions can be justified only by extreme emergency.

"More than half of all loop property is now for sale at prices ranging down to half of its assessed value. Small home owners protest bitterly against any increases. The fact is that only 81 per cent of all property taxes billed from 1928 to 1939 has been collected. Only 55 per cent of personal property taxes is collected.

Warns of a Breakdown.

"Any taxing system which consistently permits some taxpayers to avoid their just responsibilities to the extent of 20 per cent of the total tax bill in the city, and then, year after year, saddles that additional load on those who do pay, eventually will break down under its own weight."

Since the board will lose $2,000,000 this year in motor tax fuel funds no longer received from the state, the educational fund tax levy may have to be increased, Farr admitted, "but only if compensating reductions can be achieved in the building fund.

"We think the suggestions that the state should take over the Chicago Teachers' college and that the University of Illinois should take over the administration and support of the city junior colleges, deserve careful study."

The total tentative school budget for 1941 is $72,498,067, compared with $71,443,560 in 1940.

SECRETLY WED 16 YEARS AGO, SAYS SELFRIDGE

Harry Gordon Selfridge Jr., son of the American born founder of London's largest department store, and Charlotee Elsie Dennis of England, whom he married in a quiet ceremony last June in Waukegan, have been married for 16 years and are the parents of four children, it was disclosed yesterday.

Selfridge, an executive of Federated Department Stores in New York, said last night in Darien, Conn., where he is living with his family, that the marriage in 1924 had been kept secret "for very personal reasons which concerned conditions in England." It is believed by Mrs. Hobart Paul Young of Winnetka, his cousin, that Mr. and Mrs. Selfridge were remarried so there would be no question concerning Mrs. Selfridge's entry into the United States. Altho he was taken to London at the age of three and lived there until recently, Selfridge has remained an American citizen.

W-G-N PRESENTS GYPSY MUSIC OF 'SARI' TONIGHT

Kalman Operetta Starts at 9 o'Clock.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Haunting gypsy music will highlight the production of Emmerich Kalman's operetta "Sari" on the Chicago Theater of the Air from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The leading rôles of Pali Racz, the King of the Gypsies, and Sari, a girl he adopted in infancy, will be sung by Igor Gorin, the Viennese baritone, who lately became an American citizen, and Marion Claire.

This will be a return engagement for Gorin on this series. Recently he was featured in another Kalman operetta, "Countess Maritza," with Miss Claire as the feminine star. Marvin Mueller and Luise Barclay will take the leading speaking rôles.

Other Singers in Cast.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor, will sing the part of Lacsi, Pali's son, who like his father, is in love with Sari; Earl Wilkie will sing the rôle of the King of Massilia, before whom the gypsy musicians perform. Baggiore is featured each week on the W-G-N Pageant of Melody. Wilkie has been heard in previous operettas.

Featured in speaking rôles will be other members of the W-G-N Players including Bret Morrison, John Goldsworthy, Willard Waterman, Donna Reade, Bob Jellison, Malcolm Meacham, and Fran Carlon. Rosemary Garbell, Bonny Cain, and Cornelius Peeples will take the parts of the three children.

Music Restrictions Avoided.

Despite the current controversy over music on the air the Chicago Theater of the Air is able to present on W-G-N and Mutual music that is prohibited on many other stations and networks. By presenting operettas in their entirety under grand performing rights W-G-N escapes restrictions which are applicable to individual numbers.

Two Weddings and Dance Are on List Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

THEORETICALLY, the dull days are here now that the Christmas and New Year holidays are past. Actually, this week-end is anything but dull. There is a wedding in Lake Forest, not a large one, to be sure, but one of such importance that the Racquet club postponed its Twelfth Night ball from last night to next Friday when Miss Helen Dick and A. Werk Cook chose today for their wedding. The ball committee was afraid that some of their members might not feel like dancing all night the night before a wedding, and also Miss Dick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr., were giving a dinner-dance last night at the Onwentsia club.

There also is a large wedding in Barrington, that of Miss Jane McIntosh and John Ellsworth Sheldon, this afternoon. And tonight in Wayne there is the Wayne-Du Page Hunt ball, to which members of Chicagoland's other hunts have been invited.

Ceremony Taking Place in Home of Bride's Parents.

Heirloom rose point lace long treasured by the senior Mrs. Dick adds a sentimental value today to the wedding costume of her grandchild. For her marriage this afternoon the bride is wearing a Juliet cap fashioned from her grandmother's wedding handkerchief, and more of the fragile lace trims her gown. Her veil, too, is of rose point from her mother's side of the family. Mrs. Dick Jr. was Helen Aldrich before her marriage.

The ceremony is taking place at 4:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents in Lake Forest. The Rev. W. Oliver Brackett of the Presbyterian church of Lake Forest will read the service.

The bridegroom's father, Andrew E. Cook, arrived from Los Angeles in time for the dinner-dance last night. Also here for the wedding are young Mr. Cook's sister, Mrs. Edward Spaulding of Los Angeles, and the Archibald Manning Browns of Hagerstown, Md.

Will Be Home in Lake Forest After Trip to Mexico.

Miss Anita Smith will be her cousin's maid of honor, and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick III. has the post of matron of honor. Mr. Cook's best man and his only attendant is Wyndham Hasler, a Harvard classmate.

After a three week trip to Mexico the couple will be at home in one of the gate cottages on the grounds of the De Forest Hulburds' Lake Forest home.

Mrs. Howard Linn will give a tea tomorrow afternoon at her home in Lake Bluff for a group of the out-of-town guests here for the Dick-Cook marriage.

Vivid contrasts between the temperatures of Palm Springs and Sun Valley are included in the wedding trip Miss Jane McIntosh and John Ellsworth Sheldon will take after their marriage this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Methodist church in Barrington. Miss McIntosh is the daughter of the Arthur T. McIntoshes of Kenilworth and Barrington and Mr. Sheldon is the son of Percy E. Sheldon of Boston.

The Rev. Alexander Milmine of Elgin will officiate at the ceremony, which will be followed by a reception at the Barrington Hills Country club. Mr. Sheldon and his bride will reside in Boston, where he is associated with his father in business.

Miss Mary McIntosh Will Be Maid of Honor.

Miss Mary McIntosh will be her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. Lyman Smith of Barrington, Mrs. Dudley Milliken of Needham, Mass., Mrs. Hoyt Thompson of Evanston, Miss Virginia Cardwell of Barrington, Mrs. Norman Perry Jr. of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Charles Sprague of Milton, Mass., Mr. Sheldon's sister, will be bridesmaids.

James Howe of Boston will be Mr. Sheldon's best man and John Madden of Newton Centre, Mass., Palmer Futcher of New York, Charles Sprague of Milton, Mr. Sheldon's brother-in-law, and the bride's brothers, Arthur T. McIntosh Jr. and Gilbert B. McIntosh, will usher.

The first party in the Dunham Woods Riding club's renovated coach house will be the Wayne-DuPage Hunt ball tonight. Dinner will be served in the clubhouse, but the dancing will be in the famous old coach house, the scene of many gay parties since most of the Dunham estate became club property 10 or 12 years ago. The castle-like house that was occupied by the late Wirth S. Dunham and his family still is the home of one of the family, the former Barbara Dunham, and her husband, John L. Dole, but most of the other buildings now belong to the club.

Mrs. Corwith Hamill has been in charge of arrangements for tonight's ball, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Gardner Brown, and Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair, Mrs. Nathan D. McClure, and Mrs. Kenneth M. Hess Jr. Charles R. Lindsay III. will lead a cotillion that will be the feature of the ball. Mr. Lindsay is the master of the hunt, of which Col. Robert R. McCormick is honorary master. The Wayne and DuPage hunts merged last fall and thus the Wayne hunt became officially recognized by the American Foxhounds association.

Of interest is the opening today of an exhibition of paintings of India by Svetoslav Roerich, Russian born artist who now lives in India. Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher, the Harold Pynchons, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Crafts Watson, Count and Countess Bobrinskoy, Prince and Princess Galitzine, Prince and Prin-

Newlyweds in Town to See Friends

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Since their marriage on Nov. 2 the William H. Woods have been enjoying informal country life in Wheaton, with the exception of rare occasions like this when they come into town to see friends. This picture was taken yesterday as they were having cocktails at the Pump Room. The attractive Mrs. Wood was formerly Mrs. Eleanore Barrelet de Ricou, widow of Claude Barrelet de Ricou. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward William Edwards of Cincinnati.

A Cleveland publisher, Ben Zevin, made some observations to Bookman William Targ about types of novels when he was in town the other day:

A German novel is a book in which two people want each other in the first chapter, but do not get each other until the last chapter. A French novel is a book in which two people get each other in the first chapter, and from then on to the last chapter don't want each other any more. A Russian novel, however, is one in which two people neither want each other nor get each other, and about this 1,450 profoundly melancholy pages are written.

Intellectual Strip Tease Artist.

Gypsy Rose Lee, wearing a slack suit and a woolen lei about her neck, scarlet crocheted flowers with pearl and sequin centers and green crocheted leaves, gave a party for Mrs. Bert Lahr in her apartment at the Ambassador. It was interesting to note what an alert and vital personality can do to a hotel apartment.

Drawings—quick-living sketches, by Christian Berard, and Tchelichef and Marcel Vertès, in narrow pink flannel frames, on the walls. An arrangement of three of Martin Deutch's sculptured angels on one wall. Books and a radio and a record player. A bowl of flowers, roses from Carson McCullers, the girl who wrote The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter, and violets "from a lad in Indianapolis." And Miss Lee's needlepoint—she has finished the slippers for which Vertès did the design, and is now about to start on a fire screen design worked out for her by another famous modern artist.

Note for Femmes.

Those woolen leis mentioned above were brought back from South America by a famous hat designer. Dorothy Wright Liebes, San Francisco textile designer now in Chicago, wears one with a violet dinner gown, jeweled bits and bunches of blue and pink and purple wool attached to a knitted chain, looped several times about her neck. A nice decorative note to a simple gown. And fine for closer relation between the Americas.

Church Federation Approves Plan for Religious Classes

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson's plan for weekday religious education at the high school level was approved yesterday by the department of Christian education of the Chicago Church federation. The plan involves release of students for one hour a week to receive religious instruction in neighborhood churches of their own faiths.

Dr. Johnson stated that if the churches assumed responsibility for the program, with approved courses and a teaching staff on a par with that of the schools, he would grant full school credits. The department appointed a committee to develop a procedure in coöperation with Dr. Johnson, with the understanding that approaches will be made to Catholic and Jewish groups, if they desire to participate.

The committee, composed of Frank M. McKibben, chairman; William C. Bower, and Emerson O. Bradshaw, will meet with Dr. Johnson Jan. 27.

Calls Psychology of Totalitarian States Infantile

The psychology of totalitarianism is infantile while that of democracies is mature, Mrs. Grace Loucks Elliott, a psychologist, national president of the Y. W. C. A., told 150 volunteer workers and leaders of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. at their monthly forum in Loop center, 59 East Monroe street, yesterday.

"All governments are seeking security," she said, "but the totalitarian countries are pursuing it by endeavoring to stamp out all individual thinking and effort. Like children, their people must depend on one or two persons to tell them what to do and think. Democracy seeks security by transmitting personal independence thru group movements. Under it people are adults."

Good Morning!

"Santa Fe Trail" has it all over most of the pioneering westerns produced lately! In snap, in speed, and in believableness.

Its zooming action circles about the activities of John Brown, fanatical abolitionist in the days just before the civil war when the country seethed with unrest and north and south were figuratively if not literally at each other's throats. . . .

The first scenes take place in the United States Military academy at West Point with graduation imminent. . . . In the class about to receive diplomas are northerners and southerners—all good friends save for Rader, a trouble maker, who reads aloud from the incendiary writings of Brown and endeavors in all ways to create dissension.

His insults result in a fight which causes his dishonorable dismissal and brings the rest of the class upon the carpet before Gen. Lee—then head of the institution—for discipline. . . . 'heir punishment? . . . They shall constitute the "suicide brigade" detailed to protect lonely and dangerous Fort Leavenworth, in Kansas. . . .

Here Jeb Stuart and George Custer become friendly rivals for the hand and heart of "Kit Carson" Holliday, manager of her dad's wagon freight service which takes over from where the railroad ends at Fort Leavenworth and hauls freight over the Santa Fe trail to the west. . . .

Part of the freight which it is these young men's first assignment to protect, as military convoy, are boxes of "Bibles." . . . These turn out to be ammunition for John Brown and his raiders—met by the wagon train upon the trail. . . . And now drama, real, wild, and terrible is in the cards and you encounter for the first time John Brown—memorably portrayed by Raymond Massey.

A strange, powerful, desperate, magnetic zealot, Brown. Utterly fearless, completely fanatical, heading a company of reckless and ruthless men—and among them Rader—whom he has hired as military expert. . . .

Much bloody water runs under many burning bridges before Brown is finally captured and brought to the gallows.

The picture holds your interest as in a vise. It is terrifying, it is suspenseful, it is painful, but it is not without humor and the softening influence of romance.

Mr. Massey's is the outstanding performance, but right in its stride are those of Errol Flynn, Ronald Reagan, and Van Heflin. . . . Olivia De Havilland has her moments, tho I have liked her better in other pictures. All other players completely please.

Direction was flawless, and what such a photoplay needs in the way of sets, scenery, photography, and the like, "Santa Fe Trail" HAS.

Don't miss it!

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 10.—This is Johnnie With the Dark Brown Tongue filing. . . . Robert Montgomery, whose New York speech on the motion picture business was misread and misinterpreted by locals, is being given the works in a dirty whispering campaign. Producers who consider using him are being touted off him as a "trouble maker." It would be a shame if one of the town's best light comedians should suffer for using his brains to think with. . . . Howzis for a set of names? Reinhold Schunzel and William Szekely have signed Nicholas Gyory on a scripting job for "New Wine." . . . Binnie Barnes has been given a cigaret case by local magazine fotogs, who voted her the most coöperative film player. . . . John Steinbeck has just returned from Mexico, where he completed a film on his own hook. It's a contrast between old and new Mexico, and he wrote, produced, and directed it. Now he's hunting of commenter—which for my money is short and better English for commentator—and George Antheil may do the score.

Wesley Ruggles didn't figure on the ASCAP-BMI war when he chose "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair" as the theme melody for "Arizona." Incidentally, since the release of the picture he has been bombarded by letters from boner-hunters saying the song hadn't been written at the time of the film's story. They're wrong. Froter wrote the BMI hit in 1854, and "Arizona" is laid in 1861. . . Alfred Hitchcock's description of a star: "She resembles nothing more than a ballet dancer who came down too soon." . . . Cliff Nazzaro, the double-talker, will have a double-talk rôle in Republic's "You'll Never Get Rich." . . . The Hays office has cautioned one studio to be careful the way it handles a Greek comedy character in a forthcoming flicker. It points out that the Greeks haven't been comedians lately.

Lionel Atwill become an independent producer with the filming of the Nordhoff-Hall novel, "The Dark River." . . . They sneaked Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe" at Huntington park two nights ago and author Robert Riskin was the happiest-looking man in the place. A large native woman in the seat across the aisle from him was weeping in the right places, and the harder she wept the broader Bob grinned. Those at the preview felt the picture was in the bag. . . Previews of the week are "Virginia," "Cheers for Miss Bishop," and "Blackout." The last-named film, made in wartime London, is a honey of a spy thriller, so don't let the badly chosen title frighten you into thinking it is a newsreel. Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson are the principals. . . Warners are flying a couple of groups of reporters to Death Valley next week, where they'll watch James Cagney and Bette Davis on location. . Dorothy Lamour gets a chance at a good dramatic rôle in "Dildo Cay," but it's two pictures away. She just started with Bob Hope in "Caught in the Draft" and will do "Aloma of the South Seas" next.

Mickey Rooney and a pal on the "Andy Hardy" set have worked up one of the funniest routines in town for the amusement of folk between shots. It's of two chiropractors greeting each other on the street. . . . When Redmund Doms, Robert Taylor's stand-in, quit to join the army Bob gave him three blankets. But Doms, a lieutenant, is living in heated quarters—and Taylor, on location at Flagstaff in "Billy the Kid," is freezing. So Taylor wired Doms demanding the blankets back. . . . John Shelton has figured that 300 Venice high school ex-students are working at MGM, including himself and Myrna Loy. It's the nearest high school to the lot—and the front of it has a marble statue of Miss Loy as Knowledge or something. A little number she posed for when she was still in school.

Weightiest problem at Metro at the moment is how ugly to make Mr. Hyde. Spencer Tracy has been having makeup tests for days in a search for something that will be frightening but not too silly.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

One of the most distressed women you can find is the woman who has just had an unsuccessful permanent. She hates to take off her hat, and she wonders whether the horrible frizziness will ever disappear.

It will tone down in time, of course, but there are steps to take that hasten the process. One of the first of these, we think, is brushing. That burned hair needs brushing and lots of it. Two hundred strokes a day aren't enough. Make it three, or four. And massage the scalp each day to bring up the oil.

One of the hair specialists has a permanent wave oil that's a help in dressing hair that's unfortunately done to a crisp. It's rather heavy but sprayed on with an atomizer it makes a fine mist that tones down the fuzziness and contributes a little to the much needed oil supply.

If your budget will stand it, you should have professional treatments immediately. Have the scalp oiled, and the hair shafts—and a little steaming to help penetration might not be a bad idea. In the case of badly frizzed hair we would be more insistent than ever on hand drying. What might be sacrificed in trimness of setting and drying is more than compensated for by protecting the already dried out hair from intense heat.

The results of a poor permanent—lack of luster, frizzy ends and generally debilitated hair—are of more than superficial importance. It's a hard dose of punishment for even the healthiest hair. Whip it back into shape as quickly as you can.

Style Sleuth Finally Finds Perfect Slip

BY REA SEEGER.

Finding a smooth fitting slip used to be somewhat of a struggle. If you found one the right shade it had too much trim, if you found a tailored affair that just suited your street clothes it usually didn't hug the figure in the right manner. Shoulder straps also were a difficult detail. But such shopping troubles have been abolished, that is, in one collection. We've found the smoothest satin beauties of the season and do they fit!

They are of soft satin that hugs the streamline along each curve, this smoothness achieved with a bit of tricky cutting and seaming. The fitted top is perfect. Along the upper edge are bands of matching sheer material fagoted to the satin, a neat decorative accent that will appeal to both the tailored and not so tailored shoppers. It's the sort of top that can be seen thru transparent blouses without any apology and that's something!

Dull black satin models are ideal slips for all the dark daytime dresses and suits. They have the same sheer bands and fagoting trim. Flesh and white complete the color choice. The material is fine soft silk-satin . . . it tubs beautifully and the slips hang in the same smooth clinging manner after repeated tubbings. Two lengths provide a selection for both the petite and tall shopper.

Each slip is a flawless example of expert cutting and fitting, and exquisitely made. The reasonable price [around four dollars] make these costume slips a notable find, as they look twice that amount.

The Odor of Violets

By Baynard Kendrick

[Copyright 1941: By Baynard Kendrick.]

SYNOPSIS.

Leaving their house guest, Cheli Scott, Norma Tredwill goes to the city to break up the romance between her libertine ex-husband, Paul Gerente, and her stepdaughter, Barbara. She sees Barbara leave Paul's apartment, goes in, and finds Paul murdered. Duncan Maclain, a blind detective, receives a visitor who claims to be Gerente with orders from the naval intelligence. Maclain doubts his identity, goes to Gerente's apartment and finds him dead. Norma's stepson, Gilbert, is a designing engineer for Bunny Carter, head of the aircraft works. Barbara disappears and Col. Gray, head of the New York defense plans, commissions Maclain and his partner, Spud, to investigate spy activities in connection with Paul's murder and the bombing sight Gilbert has designed. Maclain goes to the Tredwill home with his two seeing-eye dogs, ostensibly to solve Barbara's disappearance. He discovers the bombing sight plans have been traced and finds Bella, the maid, beheaded. He has noticed the odor of violets in Gerente's apartment, Carter's car, and on Bella. He concludes it is a trade mark of a foreign spy system but believes that Bella was killed because she was working for the naval intelligence while pretending to be a spy. Maclain recognizes the voice of Louis Madoc, foreman at the aircraft plant, to be that of the fake Gerente. He finds a perfume ad sent to Norma from the House of Bonnee, in New York, and noticing the odor of violets on it, he realizes it contains a message. He decodes it and finds it is an order to kidnap him and find the defense plans. He dictates a message into an Ediphone and sends it to Spud to investigate the House of Bonnee. Carrying out Maclain's orderse, Spud is shot. Meanwhile, Maclain is kidnaped while driving to the city with Cheli Scott. Cameron, who works for the intelligence service, discovers the message on the Edrphone in Maclain's apartment and in turn kidnaps Madoc, making him tell where Maclain has been taken, by threat of torture. Cameron rescues Maclain and Cheli, and takes them back to the Tredwill home. Lying in bed, Maclain suddenly solves the whole mystery. He gets out of bed and takes his dog with him on a tour of investigation. He stumbles upon Cameron, stabbed, then makes his way to the Carters' chauffeur's quarters where he believes Barbara is being held, but finds she has escaped. In self-defense he shoots the chauffeur, who is a member of the spy ring. Going back to the Tredwill home he goes to Gilbert's workshop and has a battle with the real murderer of Paul and Bella, who is hidden in a suit of armor. He overpowers the killer and finds it is Cheli Scott who is really Madam Bonnee. Barbara is returned and the Tredwill family spend a happy Christmas together.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.
EXPLANATION.

Babs' blue eyes deepened. There was a new light in them now, a comprehension and understanding that Norma had missed before. It was a woman who put her hand on Norma's arm and said, "You're sweet," not a little girl.

"Capt. Maclain talked to me last night," Babs spoke almost shyly. "He told me how you'd covered up for me and brought my galoshes home here." Her voice faltered. "I—I don't know how to thank you."

Stacy's music changed again and grew louder.

Norma knew that the barriers were down and the battle won. Tragedy had struck The Crags, swift and hard, but, like everything in a chaotic world, it had its compensations. Cool indifference toward her stepmother was dead in Babs. The last of the Tredwills had welcomed Norma into the Tredwill home.

"I dislike ax-killers. It's a method of murder accompanied by a certain amount of unavoidable messiness which I find deplorable," announced Duncan Maclain.

"In other words, you want your murders clean." Spud Savage gave the nurse who was arranging his pillows an approving smile and waved her away. "If you'll just run along, sweetheart, and eat yourself some Christmas dinner, I promise I won't die."

"Also shooters from the rear, and stabbers in the back," the captain continued when the nurse had shut the door behind her.

"And I dislike friends and relatives who sit around my hospital room and swill highballs without mixing me a second one on Christmas day," Spud declared.

"—and kidnapers and spies," Maclain went on. "They lack the primary traits of humanity."

"It's a pity you haven't a notebook, Rena," Spud broke in. "Dunc's about to hold forth on the Joan of Arc who put Dreist into the dog infirmary. Properly deleted, his remarks might be collected for the benefit of posterity. Tell the colonel how you tackled her, Dunc, and threw her for a 10 yard loss."

"Spud!" exclaimed Rena. "I'm going to take your drink away!"

"Perhaps," Maclain suggested, "you'd like me to go into details about blondes and their methods of purveying perfume."

She tried to look grim.

"I hear the plaintive tinkle of ice in an empty glass," said Maclain. "Instinct tells me that the glass is in Spud's outstretched hand. Give him another, Rena. I've never known a man who could bleed whisky from an open wound. The idea interests me." He turned toward Col. Gray. "Have you had further news of Cameron today?"

"I talked with Hartford hospital an hour ago. They've operated and collapsed one of his lungs. He'll be on the sick list for many a day."

"And so are you." The colonel took a rose from a vase by the bed and absently smelled it. "That code you telephoned me last night enabled us to locate every time bomb in the country today. We dug them out of a mailing list of customers in the House of Bonnee. We also found another flock of agents provocateurs scattered from California east to New London."

"I've encountered my share of fanatics." The captain was thoughtful. "Frankly, I've never been so close to failure as I was with that Scott girl, or whatever her name may be."

Col. Gray replaced the rose he was holding in the vase, and asked: "What about her using Bunny Carter's car?"

"He's innocent as you are, Colonel. Just as Cheli fooled the Tredwills, Bunny was taken in by his chauffeur. The Crags was filled with false leads, too—Gilbert Tredwill's monetary difficulties, and his foreign born wife, didn't make things any easier for me. Here's the information we got from Babs Tredwill today."

The colonel sighed. "I'm glad that they spared that girl."

"Only because they thought they might use her." Resentment marked the captain's tone. "Babs admitted herself to Gerente's apartment with a key. He was already dead. Babs turned around to leave and faced Cheli Scott standing in the door. Cheli said: 'My God, you've killed him, Babs!', and the distraught girl broke down and began to cry. It never entered her head that Cheli could have been there before her and murdered Paul."

"It never entered mine," said Col. Gray.

"Babs said this morning that she thought Norma had put Cheli up to following her into New York to dissuade her from seeing Gerente."

"You'd have thought Babs would have insisted on giving an alarm," Rena ventured.

Maclain nodded. "That she didn't was one of many circumstances I put together last night to form the answer: Cheli. I've said before that this Scott lady is infernally quick-witted. She told Babs: 'It doesn't matter who killed this man. Nobody must know you've been here. Get your things from the Ritters, and I'll be waiting for you to come out. Walk a few blocks up Park avenue and I'll pick you up and drive you back to Hartford in Bunny's car.'"

"The use of that car still has me puzzled," the colonel admitted.

"I'm coming to it," said Maclain. "I reasoned things out this way. Norman Tredwill thought there was some one in Gerente's apartment. Babs must have encountered that person, too."

"Was there any one there when Norma was there?" Spud inquired.

"Certainly," said Maclain. "Cheli. She was in a quandary, too. If Norma hadn't left as she did, there would have been another job of killing to do. She'd taken care of Babs thru fear. Norma might not prove so easy; but Norma left in a panic, leaving Cheli to ransack the place at her leisure, and the Braille instructions in Gerente's drawer, scent them with violet——"

"Why?" Spud broke in again.

The captain answered by questioning Col. Gray. "Did you by any chance, Colonel, round up a blind man in this ring?"

"A Russian communist cobbler," the colonel supplied, "with a place on 3d avenue."

"I thought so!" Maclain displayed his pleasure by a triumphant smile. "Cheli gave those instructions to Madoc, who had driven to New York with her and Al Rutgers in Bunny's car. Bunny was away—and using his car was far safer than using her own. She had a happy faculty of shifting blame onto others. Even communications sent her from headquarters were addressed to Norma, as you know."

"And the blind man?"

"Translated the Braille, Col. Gray. Cheli scented the instructions so the blind man would know they came from the House of Bonnee. When he heard the translation, Madoc realized he had important information, if he could trick the defense plans of New York's vulnerable points out of me. Cheli had already left for Hartford with Rutgers and Babs. Madoc took a long chance and impersonated Gerente——"

"A chance that proved too long," muttered Col. Gray. "If you hadn't recognized that fellow's speech at International, I hate to think what we might have faced today."

In reply to a request for "buckwheat pancakes without yeast," I quote from "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls," which contains many other pancake recipes, too, and which the reader may obtain by sending 23 cents in stamps to me in care of THE TRIBUNE.

Quick Buckwheat Pancakes.
[Makes 16.]

1 cup white flour
1 cup buckwheat flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1 beaten egg
2¼ cups milk
¼ cup melted shortening

Sift flour, salt, baking powder, and sugar. Add egg and shortening to milk. Add liquids all at once to dry ingredients and beat batter smooth. Bake on ungreased griddle, turning once.

Sour milk may be used instead of sweet milk if one teaspoon soda is added and baking powder is reduced to one teaspoon.

A man writes to scold me for recommending white bread or white flour and in effect accuses me of conspiring with the millers to undermine the health of the public. While it is true that whole wheat bread does contain more vitamins than white bread, there certainly is no harm to be found in our old favorite, the white loaf. Most people eat white bread because they like it better than whole wheat bread, and tire of it less readily.

Millers and bakers have taken great steps recently to put back into white flour and white bread the vitamins lost in milling processes, and in some cases they supplement the flour and the bread with extra vitamins. So white bread, always highly esteemed for its flavor, is beginning to command a great degree of respect for its contributions to health.

A woman reader wants to know how to prepare black eyed peas for her husband who comes from the south. "Hog jowls" and black eyed peas are a favorite New Year's dish in some parts of the south, and are supposed to bring one good luck for the year. The dried peas [or beans if you like] are usually cooked with pork—ham or salt pork contributes most of the flavor of this favorite dish.

The cooking process is very simple. A ham knuckle or hock, or a small piece of ham [the salty cured "country" ham is the kind to use] and the peas, are simmered together gently in water to cover, until both ham and peas are tender, three hours or longer. The peas may be soaked overnight before they are put into the kettle to shorten cooking time. No other seasoning but the ham is needed, but sometimes peppercorns and onion are added during cooking. The peas, when cooked until tender, may be put into a casserole with bits of the meat and a little butter, to be baked for an hour longer at moderate temperature. And they're really good! They're good baked like navy beans, too, with salt pork and a little molasses.

Unusual Crocheted Slippers

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted slippers are always a comfort, and especially these two unusual slippers. One is crocheted with a turned back lapel across the instep and the other is a dainty pattern with a rosette trimming. Both are easy to create.

For instructions in crocheting the two sets of slippers, No. 891, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 hearts	2 spades	3 diamonds
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

West's two heart overcall was pretty weak, despite his distribution. East can scarcely be blamed for doubling the four spade contract in view of his own strength in three suits, and his partner's bid in the suit of which he was void. South would have redoubled except for his fear that the opponents would run out to five diamonds; after the voluntary spade raise from North [which was highly questionable] the four spade contract looked impregnable.

Obviously, a heart opening and ruff by East, diamond return and second ruff, would have led to the immediate defeat of the contract, but of course West could not know that East was void of hearts. He made the logical opening of the diamond ace. He might have shifted to a heart when East gave him a low diamond on this trick, but it still was virtually impossible to read South for all the hearts, hence I am not inclined to criticize West's continuation of a diamond. Declarer ruffed and laid down the spade king to see how bad a break he was going to get. West's discard of a club made this point clear and declarer, after due consideration, then laid down the club queen. East won and forced declarer again with a diamond. The spade nine was now led to the ace and a spade was returned. It should be noted that declarer did not make the fatal error of cashing dummy's club king, thereby revealing the club situation to West. Instead, he picked up East's trumps on a finesse. Meanwhile, West was having a great deal of difficulty in discarding safely. He had had to discard to four spades and, it must be noted, he still did not know that South had started with five hearts and a singleton club.

From West's point of view, it seemed vital to try to protect both hearts and clubs. How was he to know that East still had two clubs to guard dummy's suit? Thus, when declarer, having drawn all the trumps, finally got down to five cards, all hearts, West had reduced to the Q 10 9 of hearts and the J 9 of clubs. Dummy at this point held three hearts and K 5 of clubs. Declarer now cashed the heart ace, then led a low heart. West won, but this was his team's third and last trick, since either a heart or a club return gave the declarer complete control of the situation.

Advice About the Radio and Your Children

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

The radio, like the automobile, is universal. We must accept it but, at the same time, we must face the fact that both inventions, where our children are concerned, while they offer many advantages, also present problems that are not easily solved. Certainly the radio plus children, for any at-all-thoughtful parent, make a hard nut to crack.

Having accepted the inevitableness of radio, the next thing to decide is what to do about it. And in deciding what to do about it, the question of responsibility at once enters in.

Who is responsible for your child spending too much time at the radio? Who is responsible for which programs your children hear? And who is responsible for their listening to unsuitable programs or those which leave an aftermath of nervous tension, extreme excitability and bad dreams?

Why, two persons or, rather, factors, are responsible: You and the broadcasting companies.

You must take the responsibility of exercising reasonable judgment and control over your children's radio entertainment as you do over other aspects of their life, in regard to time spent and programs heard.

And the broadcasting companies, if they want a children's audience, should solicit that audience by presenting programs prepared conscientiously, with good taste, and a skilled knowledge of children. It is for them a very real and ethical responsibility. Meeting it well should also be "good business."

"What's on the Air for Children" is a leaflet of interest to parents, teachers and children. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Holy Cross General Offices to Be Moved to Washington, D. C.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Very Rev. Albert Cousineau, superior general, announced today the generalate of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, situated at the University of Notre Dame for the last 35 years, would be transferred to Washington late this month.

The congregation numbers about 1,400 ordained priests and professed brothers who, in addition to their activities in Canada, France, India, and Poland, conduct schools, colleges, and parishes in eleven dioceses and archdioceses of the United States. These include the University of Notre Dame, the University of Portland, and St. Edward's university at Austin, Tex.

The generalate of the congregation was situated at Le Mans, France, from the founding of the order in 1837 until 1880, when the Very Rev. Edward Sorin, founder of the University of Notre Dame, was elected superior general and the general house was transferred to Notre Dame.

The Very Rev. Gilbert Francais succeeded Father Sorin in 1893 and the generalate was located at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris. Father Francais came to Notre Dame in 1905 and the generalate was reëstablished at the university.

Patriotic Aprons

PATRIOTISM IN APRON PATTERNS.

Patriotic symbolism is in evidence in the apron pattern for girls today. Stars and stripes play the rôle, and ingeniously, too. Even little girls who won't don aprons to help mother with the dishes will do so when tempted with coveralls of this type.

The stamp of youth is on this two piece suit, to be made with either regulation length skirt or the shorter version for sports, both active and spectator. The only trimming is a patriotic emblem, the pattern for which is included at no extra cost. Style No. 2515 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

The artist's smock, Style No. 2756, is designed for sizes from 14 to 44 and the emblem for the pocket is included. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch fabric and ¼ yard of contrasting material for pockets.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 337, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Here's Beauty Advice for the Poor, Suffering Strap-Hanger

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

First of all, you strap-hangers, do you know that if you persist in always hanging by the same hand, body slouched, weight on one leg, other hip out at a rhumba angle, you are likely to end up with curvature of the spine or one shoulder higher than the other? So warns a physical-education authority, Al Roon.

Change strap hands every now and then, Mr. Roon advises, giving both your shoulders a chance. Stand erect, firmly on both feet, and don't point the toes out as this has a tendency to drop the arch. Point toes forward or slightly inward and strengthen the metatarsal bones. Lean slightly forward with head erect and shoulders back, and you will be improving your general posture, keeping your body at its correct measurements and getting the relaxation which comes from perfect equilibrium.

In his campaign slogan; "It Is Your Patriotic Duty to Be Physically Fit," Mr. Roon adds this important piece of advice:

If you are lucky enough to get a seat tonight on whatever vehicle you choose, don't flop into it. Slide your body forward or "sit on the nape of your neck." If you do, your abdomen eventually will protrude and your spine tire. Perhaps you sit down gingerly, then hunch over your paper, shoulders bent, lungs crowded together. Don't! That's bad, too. Instead, sprawl out your feet if you can, because you need relaxation, but first, sit back into the seat so that your lower back [its weakest part and hence most easily tired] is firmly supported. Rest your shoulder blades against the back of the seat, hold your head erect, and bring the paper up to your eyes instead of bending your body to it.

"Do you know that your head is very heavy, and that it's a big job to hold it up? Respect your spine, which is the center of your nervous system, and set your head firmly on top of it instead of letting it hang forward like a bad child dragging on a tired parent's hand. Support your back to help it with your head. Your body will thank you with less nervousness and fewer aches."

Loving Married Man Is Futile, Inadvisable

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

"I love a married man who tells me that, after his children are married and settled in their own homes, he will get a divorce and marry me. I am widowed and have two children under 10. I want a home more than anything else, and while I have a fairly good job I still find existence without a man dull and dreary.

"You see, my husband died several years ago. It was after his death I picked up with the married man, who, in some ways, is good to me, but he is selfish and so jealous of me he can't see at times. Another thing, he drinks and gets nasty, but when he is sober he is one of the nicest men I know. He has taken a couple of good years out of my life already, and my mother and friends think I'd be much happier did I have a single man in view instead of this married one. I would be grateful for your advice.—Unhappy."

If it is a home you want, until you have a better prospect for making it come true in the completed sense of the word, why don't you proceed to make one for the youngsters? Thousands of women are doing just that, and it's a more selfless occupation, therefore promising of more happiness.

Your own picture of the married man makes him a poor candidate for partnership in your home. Selfish, jealous, a drinker, and nasty with it! Visualize that in a domestic scene, and visualize the poor wretch of a woman his wife must be, with him out philandering with you, spending money on you that's rightly her due, and using the children's marriages as alibi for a divorce date which we'll wager never arrives.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

Jan. 11, 1941.

Universal day—A very nervous and emotional day for those too easily impressed by passing influences.

Vocations—The number 11 as a vocation number for those born on the 11th of any month is either a blessing or a handicap. If one takes the inspiration of this number and works unselfishly to fulfill dreams and aspirations that have no immediate material gain or fame as rewards, then the best of this powerful number can be realized, as it was in the case of Thomas Edison, who was born on Feb. 11. The inventiveness and pure inspiration which he had is the highest form of this number. If reduced to a single digit it becomes a 2, and then the person is buried under detail. He has to take a subordinate position and work behind the scenes.

ZALE DEFEATS MAMAKOS; DAY WINS IN FIRST

REVEAL FIGURES AT PREMIERE OF SPORTS MOVIE

'All-American Way' Ready for Public.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Sport fans, including Governor Elect Dwight Green, scores of other civic leaders and several hundred of the men who coöperate as officials in THE TRIBUNE'S famous sports promotions, last night packed W-G-N's main studio to witness the première of "The All-American Way," the sound motion picture panorama of games and other sports spectacles organized and sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

There were views of the events which have earned $950,632.75 for organized charity in the last dozen years but the nonrevenue producing sports, such as Silver Skates, the golf school, the interscholastic regatta and all the others, are not shoved aside in the cinema by the big winners for charity.

At last night's première, Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE and director of the paper's sports enterprises, presented checks totaling $36,366.78—profits of the College All-Star vs. Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field on the evening of Aug. 29, which was attended by 84,581.

The charity organizations, by the way, have been asked to do no more in the promotional enterprises than accept the profits as soon as determined after each rich event.

Many Sports Contribute.

In a brief presentation speech, Mr. Ward revealed that Golden Gloves tournaments since their inception in 1928 have contributed $417,968.08 to charity. The All-Star football games, the first of which was played in 1934, have netted $208,624.88 for charity, to bring the total contributions from the two enterprises to $626,591.96.

The first major league All-Star baseball game, promoted and sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, netted $46,501.99. Organized baseball since has carried on the feature originated by THE TRIBUNE, for a total profit for charity of $301,921.59. Added to this was the profit of $22,120.20 from the Jim Londos-Ed Lewis wrestling match in 1934. Thus the total for charity, as Mr. Ward pointed out, has been $950,632.75, of which $695,214.15 was contributed directly by events promoted in their entirety by THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Ward also gave the figures for the 1940 profit-deriving events—$28,122.34 from Golden Gloves which, added to the amounts presented last night, brought the year's contributions to $64,482.13.

Expenses Are Heavy.

Informally, Mr. Ward pointed out some of the expenses in the promotion of events of the magnitude of Golden Gloves and the All-Star game. Taking the 1940 football game as an example, the sports editor said that the rental of Soldiers' field was $15,787 and the hire of ushers and gate men $2,779. Electrical and other supplies, including installation labor, cost $11,000 and the compensation for the college players was $10,350, with $10,091 added for living expenses while in Evanston preparing for the game. The Green Bay Packers received 23 per cent of the net receipts, and expenses of the band, tho a volunteer turnout, were $1,500. Equipment for the players cost $4,128, Mr. Ward revealed.

The checks were received last night by Dexter Cummings of the United Charities, Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Catholic Charities, and Samuel A. Goldsmith of the Jewish Charities.

Tells Story of 1933 Game.

Among the speakers at the première were Will Harridge, president of the American league; Avery Brundage, for many years president of the Amateur Athletic union and now chairman of the American Olympic committee; Joe Triner, president of the National Boxing association and chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, and Kenneth L. Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university.

Mr. Harridge related the story of the inception of the major league All-Star baseball game. After telling how the plan was unfolded to him at a luncheon with Mr. Ward in the spring of 1933, President Harridge continued:

"I informed Mr. Ward that he had given me a real job to sell such an idea to our league, in view of the fact our schedule was out and the championship season was on. To find a date in an already compact schedule would mean the canceling of a number of our championship games to permit sufficient time for our players to get to and from the game. Our clubowners were approached, however, and, to my surprise, received the suggestion with much enthusiasm. Dates were canceled and the game was played in Comiskey park in Chicago on July 6, 1933.

It's a Fixture Now.

"Thru the efforts and the coöperation of Arch Ward and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the game received such nationwide publicity and went over in

Games Tonight

Indiana at Illinois.
Michigan at Purdue.
Iowa at Wisconsin.
Butler at Notre Dame.
Marquette at Detroit.
Duquesne vs. Loyola in Coliseum.
Bradley vs. De Paul in Coliseum.
St. Louis at Washburn.
Washington U. at Creighton.
Charleston at Macomb.
Oklahoma at Kansas State.
Augustana at Lake Forest.
Knox at Cornell.
George Williams at Wheaton.
Iowa Central at Luther.
Simpson at Loras.
Princeton at Army.
Concordia [Fort Wayne] at Concordia [River Forest].

BY WILFRID SMITH.

It's Indiana university's turn tonight to try to stop the University of Illinois basketball team. Purdue's defending Big Ten champions failed at the task Monday and if the Illini get past the Hoosiers, who twice defeated Purdue last year and also won the National Collegiate title, then they must rate as favorites in the 1941 campaign.

Northwestern's quintet, beaten only by Butler, opens conference play tonight at Ohio State. The Buckeyes notched their first victory Monday over Michigan. The Wolverines are Purdue's opponents in Lafayette, Ind., tonight, while undefeated Iowa also opens its conference schedule in Madison, Wis., against the Badgers. Wisconsin was beaten by Minnesota last Monday.

Expect a Full House.

While tickets remain for the Indiana-Illinois clash, by game time another capacity crowd of 7,183 — attendance Monday night — is anticipated. The Hoosiers will send a veteran squad against Illinois. Capt. Marv Huffman was the only major loss by graduation. Indiana also enters the conference season with a most impressive record. It was beaten once, but that 41 to 39 defeat by Southern California was more than balanced by victories over Stanford, California, and U. C. L. A. on the Hoosiers' western holiday trip.

On the way home Indiana defeated Kentucky in the Sugar bowl game in New Orleans. Georgia, Butler, and Marshall were other victims.

Mike's the Boy to Watch.

Forrest Sprowl, Purdue forward, who turned in a splendid game against Illinois, and Don Blemker, guard, are the mainstays of the Boilermakers. Coach Ward Lambert has experimented with Bob Riley and Fred Krampe, sophomores, this week in an attempt to get control of the ball off the backboards.

Mike Sofiak, former high school star from Gary, Ind., is most formidable of the Wolverine invaders. Despite Michigan's defeat by Ohio State, Purdue fears tonight's result. Michigan has beaten Purdue only three times in 12 games since 1929. Last year Purdue won a defensive game, 25 to 17.

Having been completely successful by juggling his lineup before the Michigan game, Coach Harold Olsen, of Ohio State will stand pat tonight against Northwestern. Fred Miller and Dick Fisher will start at forward, Roger Jorgenson will be at center, replacing Jack McLain a regular last year, and Jack Graf and Max Gecowets will be the guards. Fisher has replaced Capt. Gil Mickelson.

N. U. Lineup Is Unchanged.

Northwestern will open with the same lineup that finished the nonconference games with defeat of Princeton. Russ Wendland and Clarence Haase, sophomores, share starting honors with Capt. Al Butherus, Don Clawson, and Henry Clason.

MICHIGAN STATE FIVE CONQUERS MARQUETTE, 25-18

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 10 [Special].—Michigan State's basketball five continued its winning way tonight with a 25 to 18 victory over Marquette. The Spartans were trailing, 13 to 9, at half time but rallied brilliantly during the second half and rolled up 16 points while Marquette was getting five free throws. Lineup:

The irreplaceable golfing treasures heretofore displayed in the building have been moved to a place of safety for the duration of the war. . . . Berwanger's talents, according to the Stanford leader, were best suited for the single wing back. . . . The tendency of smaller colleges and universities to abandon so-called big time football for schedules with natural rivals is one of the most wholesome developments in amateur sport. . . . There is no reason for a school with an enrollment of say 1,000 students to travel thousands of miles to meet opponents with four or five times the man power at their disposal. . . . Many of the evils attending college football are connected with the efforts of certain colleges to rise above their normal athletic level. . . .

All This and Heaven, Too?

At a recent sports show out here on the banks of the Mississippi the star performer of the evening was an incredible looking specimen of brawn and what have you billed as "the Angel." As this glamor boy of some lost era climbed into the arena, a voice from the ringside piped up crisply and distinctly, "Well, if angels look anything like that, I don't see why I should struggle to lead an upright life. Come on, where's the bar?" —Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Annual Ceremony.

From off the Christmas tree
And burned them in the open grate
For all of us to see.
And pungent fragrance filled the room
As flames ascended there
And wove again the Christmas scene,
Altho the tree was bare.
Within the balsam scented walls
Its presence lingers on,
Reminding us of festive hours

Flight Into Egypt.

My Infant is asleep
Soothed by my lullaby,
And lo, the angels keep
The candles of the sky
Aflame with silver light
To guide us thru the night.

The way is hard and long,
And the night air is chill,
But in my heart a song
Of joy will not be still;
For I have made His nest
Against my throbbing breast.

We shall be all alone
In Egypt's mighty land,
Dissevered from our own
And all that we had planned;
But O, my Babe will be
Solace and strength to me.

And tho no friends appear
To bring us comforting,
My heart shall know no fear
For every day will bring
His smiling morning eyes

Hoppe Goes to Hospital After Setback

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Willie Hoppe, the man who tried to play Jake Schaefer, an attack of influenza, and three 60 point blocks of championship three cushion billiards all at one and the same time, was removed from his hotel room to St. Luke's hospital last night.

His physicians stated that the transfer was a precautionary measure taken after the 53 year old titleholder suffered a slight setback in the evening. During the afternoon Hoppe's temperature had dropped to 101 degrees from a high of 103.8 on Thursday. Subsequently, however, he suffered a slight chill.

Breaks Down During Match.

Hoppe collapsed Thursday night shortly after the opening of the eighth and final block of his challenge match with Schaefer in Bensinger's Arena. He was removed to his hotel room with a temperature of 103 degrees, yielding at last to the flu attack which caused such a breakdown in his play that he lost the sixth and seventh blocks, after having won the first five easily, and was well on the way to losing the eighth and the match when he was prevailed upon to withdraw.

The 53 year old New Yorker who has won all the titles that can come to a cueist had hoped to defend his crown in the tournament proper, which opens in the Bensinger arena Monday. He may work out a catch up arrangement after recovering from his illness.

Other Players Due Today.

Only three players remain to fill out the tournament cast, and they will arrive from the Pacific coast today. They are Welker Cochran, Jay Bozeman, and John Fitzpatrick. Aside from Hoppe and Schaefer, those already present yesterday included Otto Reiselt, Joe Chamaco, Allen Hall, Art Thurnblad, Tiff Denton, Art Rubin, Clarence Jackson, Len Kenney, Earl Lookabaugh, Joe Moriarty, Herb Peterson, Irving Crane, and Paul Lewin.

CHAMPION GETS SPLIT DECISION; 11,064 SEE BOUT

Castiglione Goes Out in 34 Seconds.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Lou Nova beat Pat Comiskey [10]; Bill Poland beat Al Delaney [10]; Henry Morcos and Floyd Gibbons drew [6]; Bill Renfro beat Tommy Madden [4]; Joe Baksi beat Frank Poreda [4]; Freddie Fiduzia stopped Joe Maffei [1].

At Pittsburgh, Pa.—Carmen Notch stopped Baby Chocolate [7].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Mamakos held an edge until the fourth round, when Zale sent his aggressive rival to the canvas for no count with a left hook to the jaw. This punch sent the Gary boxer into the lead, but he didn't hold this margin long. After being applauded for his game stand in the next round, Mamakos electrified the 11,064 spectators by taking the play away from the champion in the sixth and winning the round.

Tony Drops Him Again.

Mamakos continued to hold the upper hand in the seventh and eighth rounds. In the ninth, however, Zale connected with a series of vicious punches to the head which dropped Mamakos for no count for the second time during the furious battle.

There was no question of Zale's superiority in the last round. He punched Mamakos at will, except for a brief rally by Steve near the end of the session.

Referee Frank McAdams voted 55-45 and Judge William O'Connell 54-46 for Zale. Ed Hintz, the other judge, called the nontitle match a draw.

Net receipts were $18,674, of which Zale will receive 35 per cent and Mamakos 15 per cent.

Expect Re-Match for Title.

Since the battle was nip and tuck most of the way, Mamakos may be rewarded with a rematch with Zale's championship at stake. Promoter Bill Rand had hoped to have Zale defend his title in the same arena Feb. 21, but Sam Pian, one of the champion's managers, indicated he would not be available on that date because of the need of a rest.

Mamakos came out of the bout with cuts over his eyes and badly bruised lips, while Zale was unmarked except for puffed eyes.

Day Wins In First.

Davey Day, Chicago lightweight, who has been idle since last May 3, when he was outpointed by Sammy Angott for National Boxing association title recognition, knocked out Nick Castiglione in the first round of a scheduled 10 round secondary feature. Referee Frank Sikora completed his count after only 34 seconds of the round had elapsed.

Castiglione caught a right to the jaw a few seconds after the bout started. The blow sent him to the canvas for no count. He wasn't on his feet long, however, when another right exploded on his chin and he fell spinning to the canvas for the count.

NOVA WINS EASY 10 ROUND FIGHT WITH COMISKEY

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Lou Nova, California boxer who is attempting a return to the ranks of the leading heavyweight contenders, scored an easy ten round decision over Pat Comiskey of Paterson, N. J., before 12,800 tonight in Madison Square Garden.

At all stages of the bout Nova held command. He knocked his opponent to one knee with a right in the first round, but Comiskey grabbed Nova around the waist and pulled himself up without a count. In the tenth, after a long battering, Comiskey slumped to one knee and leaned against the ropes for a count of nine. Cuts were opened over both his eyes before the bout was half over. Nova tried for a knockout thruout the fight but wasn't able to connect with sufficient power.

Nova had been considered one of the leading contenders for Joe Louis' crown until he was beaten by Tony Galento sixteen months ago. Comiskey had been stopped by Max Baer in the first round of a bout last summer.

Tonight's gate receipts were $30,482. Nova weighed 200¾ pounds and Comiskey 204¾.

BAIT CASTERS TO COMPETE IN TWO OUTDOOR SHOWS

Contests, Classes to Be Held in February.

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicagoland sportsmen will have the opportunity to see two outdoor sports shows in Chicago during February. The first of these is the Chicago National Boat and Sports show, which opens Feb. 1 on Navy pier, and the second is the International Outdoor Sportsmen's show, Feb. 22 to March 2, in the International amphitheater.

The boat and sports show, which will run nine days, will occupy the entire northwing of Navy pier. THE TRIBUNE again will sponsor the bait casting events in this show, in which all Chicagoland anglers are invited to compete. There will be a regulation tournament event for club casters as well as an event for fishermen using fishing equipment.

Schools to Be Held.

The rules for Skish casting will be in effect for the fishermen's event, but tournament scoring will be used. Handsome trophies will be awarded to the winners in these two events and in the finals.

On nights when no casting event is scheduled, THE TRIBUNE will conduct a school for casters who want to improve their skill with rod and reel.

Outdoor Sports Represented.

Tilden Files 104 Entries in Silver Skates

Park Meet Today

SKATERS from parks and playgrounds thruout Chicago will compete today in the annual Chicago Park district meet, starting at 1 o'clock on the Waveland rink in Lincoln park. The schedule of events ranges from 220-yard dashes to a mile and includes a mile relay. Entrants include skaters of all classes from midget to senior.

The Tilden Skating club for the past two years has won The Chicago Tribune Silver Skates trophy which is annually offered for the organization with the largest number of contestants participating in the preliminaries. Tilden again plans to win this award in the twenty-fourth Silver Skates Derbies in Garfield park Jan. 18 and 19.

Louis P. Christoffel, coach of the Tilden team, has submitted 104 entries and he added that he hopes to add several more before the deadline, which is midnight tomorrow.

So far Perry playground appears to be the most serious contender for the trophy Tilden's skaters seek. Perry has entered 101 contestants. The number of entries, of course, does not determine the winner, for only those who report for their preliminary races are counted. Four age divisions—boys' midget, juvenile, and junior, and girls' junior—will report at Garfield park a week from today between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. for their racing numbers. All other skaters report on Sunday, Jan. 19, between 10 a. m. and 12 noon to receive their credentials.

Charity Gets $950,632 from Tribune Sports

Chicago with such a bang that it has been continued annually by popular demand. Eight games have been played—one in Chicago, two in New York, and one each in Cleveland, Boston, Washington, Cincinnati, and St. Louis. The 1941 game will be played in Briggs stadium, Detroit.

"The game is now a very definite part of our summer schedule with three dates set aside when no championship games are played, in the early part of July. Players who are selected as members of the teams deem it a great honor and gladly donate their services for the benefit of others who have been less fortunate. Fans have been given the opportunity of seeing practically all of the outstanding stars of both major leagues in action at regular season prices. More than $316,000 from the proceeds of the eight games played has been given to the charity fund of the Players' association. Included in this amount is a contribution made each year to the Baseball Writers' association of America toward its charity needs.

"Baseball is indebted to Arch Ward and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the creation of the All-Star game."

Film Available to Public.

While last night's premiére was invitational, all fans will have an opportunity to see the film. Films are available for fraternal and commercial organizations, luncheon clubs, high school and college groups and other associations. Even before the first showing more than 50 applications for use of the film had been received at the Tribune Public Service bureau, 1 S. Dearborn street.

KNICKERBOCKER BECOMES NO. 25 OF SOX SIGNERS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The most important item in the mail delivered at the White Sox park yesterday was the contract, properly signed, of Bill Knickerbocker, the veteran infielder recently taken from the Yankees in exchange for Ken Silvestri, the kid catcher.

Knickerbocker, whose big league career now embraces four American league clubs, did his pay acceptance job in Whittier, Cal., where he will remain until March 1, the date on which he is due to report at the Pasadena training camp.

The alumnus of the Indians, Browns, and Yankees was the 25th to sign out of a roster of 34 men, but the fact that Vice President Harry Grabiner has set back the inaugural of his California vacation to Jan. 20 indicates that one or more of the absentees have kicked up a disturbance.

Along with Knickerbocker's signing, Grabiner let the world know that Manager James Dykes has changed his mind about sending three of his fat boys on a reducing jaunt without a policeman. Julius Solters, Taft Wright, and Eddie Smith have orders to go to Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 1 for three weeks' attention to their respective waist lines.

Originally they were to go unaccompanied, but Coach Mule Haas has been added to the party and the Mule's job will be to see that the patients take the reducing course seriously.

General Manager James T. Gallagher wasn't at all happy about the mail deposited at the Cubs' offices yesterday. Only one contract arrived, making a total of seven now signed. It came from Ray Campbell, one of last spring's pitching rookies, who was farmed out to Tulsa. Subsequently he was shipped back to the Cubs because of some sort of muscular complaint.

EXPECT SERIOUS RESULTS FROM ARMS SPENDING

Leaders Give Views on Problems.

Many business leaders yesterday expressed the belief that the national defense spending may leave in its wake serious problems in this country. The aftermath of the defense spending "prosperity," they said, probably would be marked by an enormous tax burden, widespread unemployment, and numerous idle plants.

Some industrial executives reported that they were too busy coping with present problems to hazard any predictions. Others, however, outlined plans of action that may serve to cushion adverse effects when the "bottom falls out of defense prosperity."

Several suggested that the government give domestic industry a freer hand so that it can keep in step with the development of defense production. Others agreed that industries should be planning for new lines of goods thru more research work to take up the slack, which they said is bound to come.

Terms Boom a Catastrophe.

"There is no doubt but that the defense program has had a far reaching effect on business acceleration, and as time goes on it will greatly increase this pressure. It is not a 'boom' but a catastrophe, which will throw industry out of balance and leave behind it serious problems to solve.

"Preparation now for the time when defense spending ends is one of industry's major problems. New industries must be created to take the place of the increased war materials. This will require greater research work and farsightedness by industry."

View on Internal Situation.

B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor company, said:

"I have some doubts whether some elements of our society really want a republic of free citizens to go ahead. It is this lack of concern by many which will determine whether the long term impact of our preparedness program and the help-Britain project shall destroy our American way of living as well as our American concept of business."

"I do not think we in industry can gain much by trying to see too far into the murky future. Our main task now, as William S. Knudsen has said, is 'to help to prove that a free people are capable of self-discipline and of productive work superior to that of a dictator's subjects'."

Forecasts Many Difficulties.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, said:

"There is nothing substantial in the present boom. It is founded almost entirely upon spending by Britain and the United States for war and defense. Were it not for these factors the steel industry, for example, would be operating at less than 60 per cent of capacity."

H. W. Prentis Jr., president of Armstrong Cork company, contended:

"The defense program is stimulating business, and will do so even more. But a business upturn based primarily on the armament program may prove to be unsound because it involves production of the type of goods which, in themselves, neither create income nor inprove our standard of living. During the armament period, however, business, labor, and government can take steps which may cushion, if not prevent, a postarmament depression."

Sees Problem in Wages.

W. Homer Hartz, president of the Morden Frog and Crossing Works, emphasized the problem that industry probably would face as a result of the government paying excessive wages to common labor on defense projects. He said that readjusting rates for this labor in private industry to meet the high scale set by the government would be a difficult job.

C. A. Tilt, president of the Diamond T Motor Car company, urged business men to look forward to more world trade. The United States, he said, can become the "international banker" as well as the world's largest supplier of goods, providing England is successful in the war. This trade would more than make up for any decline in industry at the end of the defense spending, he said.

Utility's Plan Inadequate, SEC Decides

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange commission rejected today a request by Columbia Gas and Electric corporation for a declaration that thru certain proposed changes the company would comply with both the integration and corporate simplification requirements of the so-called "death sentence" of the holding company act.

The commission's action was a final step in a proceeding begun about two years ago. It issued a tentative finding last July approving parts of the proposed plan but withholding an overall finding.

70,000 Own Securities.

Columbia Gas has a book value investment of about $367,000,000 in subsidiaries which compose a system aggregating more than $700,000,000 in assets. Columbia Gas itself has about 70,000 security holders and operates gas utilities in 1,195 communities and electric utilities in 414 communities in eight states.

The steps proposed by Columbia Gas called for the dissolution of six inactive subsidiaries; the transfer to itself of three wholly owned subsidiaries of Atlantic Seaboard corporation; the transfer of the assets of Eastern Pipe Line company to Home Gas company, both subsidiaries, and dissolution of Eastern Pipe Line, and the transfer by United Fuel Gas company of Big Marsh Oil company, a nonutilities subsidiary.

Will Approve Transfers.

The commission commented that this part of the plan "does not appear to be very substantial," but that it was ready to approve the steps when full details were submitted.

The commission declared that its final decision rested solely on the fact that the system as presented included both electric and gas utilities. system and additional systems.

Both types could be retained, the commission said, but added that they would have to conform to the "ABC standards" providing for a single system and additional systems.

The commission said that voting power was "unfairly and inequitably distributed among at least three of the more important companies," Columbia Gas itself, Dayton Power and Light company, and the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company.

Trinz Estate Charge Filed in Probate Court

Charges that fraud and negligence on the part of the Chicago Title and Trust company have deprived heirs of Joseph Trinz, midwest theater owner, of the fortune he left, were made yesterday in the Probate court.

The charges were denied last night by the trust company. Holman D. Pettibone, president of the company, said Trinz had guaranteed mortgages issued by building concerns owned by Lubliner and Trinz Theaters, Inc., and that payment of these debts had depleted the estate.

Trinz, who died in 1926, was a partner of Harry Lubliner in the theater corporation. They owned 26 theaters in the middle west.

Loss Placed at 3 Millions.

Yesterday's charges were contained in objections to the trust company's final report as administrator of the Trinz estate and were filed by Attorney Charles Cohns in behalf of 14 heirs.

Cohns said the loss to the heirs was approximately 3 million dollars. He placed the value of the estate at 5 million dollars at the time of Trinz' death and said all that remains is $8.73 in cash and $2,000 or $3,000 in stocks. Cohns said the beneficiaries have received approximately $15,000.

The objections charged unlawful payment of thousands of dollars in attorneys' fees, unlawful or unjustified sale of real estate, and excessive and unreported payments to officials of the trust company.

It was charged that $974,999 of stock owned by the Trinz and Lubliner concern was sold for $137,409 in 1928 to Rose Davis, a stenographer for the law firm of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, and Levinson. The estate received nothing from this sale, according to the charges. It also was charged that "excessive" sums had been paid to Lubliner.

Payments to Officers Cited.

Cohns' brief charged "unreported and unrecorded" payments of $54,900 to Pettibone; $20,000 to Chester R. Davis, vice president and trust officer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, and $30,000 to Charles Carroll, assistant trust officer.

Pettibone said Cohns' objections are based on the contention that dealings in securities owned by the Trinz-Lubliner corporation are matters for probate. He said the trust company always has opposed this contention, because the estate consisted principally of stock in the theater concern. He said payments to individual officers of the trust company were for company services performed in administering the estate and were turned over to the trust company.

Edward Blackman, attorney of the law firm of Spitz and Adcock, which has been handling the Trinz case for the trust company, said the estate had been declared insolvent for income tax purposes by both the state and the federal governments.

REPORTS EFFORTS TO GIVE MIDWEST MOST ARMS JOBS

Defense Aims Stated by Commissioner.

Number one object and job of the National Defense commission is to spread the great bulk of defense orders among business enterprises located between the Appalachian and Rocky mountains, Dr. William L. Batt, deputy commissioner of the industrial materials division of the defense advisory commission, said last night.

William L. Batt.

Speaking before more than 300 industrial engineers from the Chicago area at the Palmer House, Dr. Batt said the commission had found it desirable for economic, social, and defense reasons to award defense contracts to businesses in the middle west.

Explains Big Orders Given East.

"There has been considerable criticism that so much defense business went into the east," Dr. Batt said. "When you go out to buy emergency materials, you go to the industry that has had some experience in manufacturing them. That is why early orders went to manufacturers located in the coastal areas—they were experienced in making powder, building planes, and forging shells.

"Agriculture in the middle west has lost its export markets and must find a new means of livelihood. Therefore, for economic reasons, the commission feels these areas should have new industries. Spread of the defense contracts is socially desirable because it will halt a migration from the agricultural areas to the industrial. However, defense and safety are the principal reasons why we want to award as many contracts as possible to midwestern industry."

Changing Buying Methods.

The commission is doing away with competitive bidding on defense contracts and is replacing it with a process of negotiation. Dr. Batt said it was asking manufacturers in a given area to name the price they must have to build the materials. Then the commission can award the contracts intelligently, he said.

He attributed the new method of awarding defense contracts to a plan outlined by Donald Nelson, executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, and now administrator of priorities with the commission.

NEW EXPANSION OF PLANE PARTS WORK APPROVED

Chrysler Head Tells Bomber Plans.

Plans for further expansion of the aviation industry were disclosed yesterday. In Washington the war department announced new plants and additions totaling $18,000,000 and in Detroit K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, told of a tentative agreement for his company's participation in airplane construction. Meantime, Chicago companies were given comparatively small defense orders.

The war department said that President Roosevelt has approved expansion of the aircraft facilities of the Curtiss propeller division of the Curtiss-Wright corporation at an estimated cost of $14,090,350. The plans call for a new plant at Pittsburgh and enlargement of plants at Indianapolis and Caldwell, N. J.

The President also approved construction of a new plant by Ohio Crankshaft, Inc., at Cleveland, to cost an estimated $3,968,130 for the manufacture of Wright airplane crankshafts.

Goodyear to Supply Parts.

Keller, speaking at a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, said that a tentative agreement has been reached by which Chrysler will make air frame parts for the Martin B-26 bombers. The B-26 plane is to be constructed by Martin at the rate of 100 a month under the Chrysler-Martin plans.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company will participate as a supplier of rubber parts, Keller stated. He said that about 600,000 square feet of space was leased recently from the Graham-Paige Motor Car company for use in the construction of bomber parts.

Keller stated that the automobile industry may be able to improve and speed up the airplane manufacturing process after it has learned what the airplane people have found out by years of practical experience. He added, however, that any idea that the automobile industry can revolutionize aircraft procedure "is the bunk."

Gets New Truck Order.

The Chrysler corporation announced a new order for 10,419 specially designed Dodge trucks for the army which has raised military orders received by the corporation for its United States and Canadian plants during the last 12 months to more than 57,000 units. Total value of the trucks was placed at more than $58,000,000. The corporation since Jan. 1, 1940, has shipped 18,950 units to the United States army. Truck shipments overseas has exceeded 7,700. The corporation is now producing more than 250 army trucks daily.

Chicago orders announced yesterday included: Navy department, Sciaky corporation, electric welding machines, $89,770; war department, Goodman Manufacturing company, forgings, $1,932; Hoover Ball and Bearing company, ball bearings, $2,071; Imperial Brass Manufacturing company, bronze connections, $1,397; Clearing Machine corporation, presses, $27,700; W. F. Hebard & Co., industrial tractors, $1,427; Arnold Schwinn & Co., wheel assemblies, $63,918; C. F. Peace company, photographic print dryers, $98,948, and Reliance Manufacturing company, shirts, $182,645.

The navy awarded a $31,125,619 contract to the Camden Forge company, Camden, N. J., for the purchase of special equipment for the production of heavy forgings.

Navy Contracts for Barges.

The war department awarded a $2,357,000 contract to the Corbetta Construction company for the construction of warehouses at the quartermaster corps general depot at Columbus, O. A contract for $1,971,300 went to National Acme company, Cleveland, for machines.

The navy awarded $3,984,448 for an undisclosed number of barges. One for $2,184,448 was given the Lake Superior Shipbuilding company, Superior, Wis., and another for $1,800,000 to the Basalt Rock company, Inc., Napa, Cal.

Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., announced an army contract for $1,900,000 for the manufacture of breech housing for artillery and that the navy department has increased its $4,000,000 ammunition hoist order to $5,500,000.

The Sioss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company disclosed at Birmingham, Ala., that it will add 100,000 tons annually to its foundry coke capacity by restoring to operation 87 beehive type ovens which have been idle since the world war.

Lake Shore Bank's Profit Rises; Officials Re-elected

An increase in net profit for the year 1940 over 1939 was reported yesterday by Joseph R. Frey, president of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, at the annual stockholders' meeting.

Joseph R. Frey.

Net profit last year amounted to $156,241, compared with $141,666 in 1939. The bank had deposits of $17,172,593 at the end of the year, $3,652,969 above those of a year previous. All directors and officers were reëlected.

The statement of the First National Bank of Englewood disclosed gross income for 1940 of $138,099 and net income of $23,062, against net income of $16,523 in 1939.

Vote on Capital Increase.

C. W. Hoff, president of the University State bank, said that stockholders at their annual meeting Tuesday would vote on a $100,000 increase in capital and distribution of an equivalent stock dividend. Under the proposed plan, holders would receive one additional share for every two now held.

After distribution, the bank would have $300,000 capital, $150,000 surplus, and $159,000 undivided profits, according to Hoff.

All directors and officers of the Main State bank and the Mount Prospect State bank were reëlected. Officers of the Cicero State bank were reëlected also.

Takes Post of Brother Who Died.

Charles F. Schultz was elected a director of the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings bank, filling the vacancy caused by the death of his brother, Albert A. Schultz, three months ago. The directors met later and reëlected all officers.

Three new positions were created by directors of the Pioneer Trust and Savings bank. Erwin P. Neumer was named assistant cashier and auditor, and I. T. Amundsen and William S. Lewis were named assistant cashiers. All other officials were reëlected. At an earlier meeting of the stockholders, the directors were reëlected.

Dennis J. Organ was elected a director of the River Forest State bank and the other directors were reëlected. Officers were all reëlected.

More Chicago Firms Report New Expansion

BY AL CHASE.

Three more manufacturers in the Chicago metropolitan industrial area are expanding, largely the result of national defense program contracts.

The National Road Joint Manufacturing company, 535 West 76th street, yesterday leased 18,000 square feet—approximately three times the firm's present space—at 1747-51 West 74th street, in the Southwest Manufacturing district, which it will occupy shortly.

The company, which makes road expansion joints, recently received a $600,000 contract from the government for field cooking ranges for the army. These ranges are 40 inches high, 20 inches wide, and 24 inches long, and are made of stainless steel and aluminum. They burn gasoline and are carried in army trucks.

Will Make Only Cabinets.

The company's contract calls for the making of only the range cabinets and not the burners. Complete delivery is specified for June 30.

The space, leased thru the Mark Levy Realty company, is in a big building built during the world war for the Symington Arms plant, but which was never occupied by that concern.

Altho the road joint maker has no other defense contracts it expects to expand further and may lease 10,000 additional space adjoining its new location, it was said. Burr Wilcox is president of the company.

The McGraw Electric company, which has a large plant on a 45 acre tract south of Elgin, is having plans drawn by E. O. Sessions & Co., Chicago engineers, for two big additional one story units. One will be used for manufacturing purposes and the other for warehousing. One unit is to be 100 by 250 and the other 150 by 280.

May Cost About $160,000.

Bids will be taken about March 1. It is understood the two buildings may cost about $160,000. The company recently received a $65,000 order for electric toasters for the navy.

Work has just been started on a 57 by 144 foot one and two story concrete addition to the plant of the Lindberg Steel Treating company, at 220 West Laflin street, at the southwest corner of Fulton street. Building and equipment will cost about $75,000, according to Leon Stanhope, architect. The Lindberg company hardens steel by a Swedish temperature process.

SWIFT'S LIBBY STOCK HOLDINGS TO BE FILED FOR PUBLIC OFFERING

Plans were disclosed yesterday for registering an offering of 3,018,639 shares of Libby, McNeil & Libby capital stock, representing the holdings of Swift & Co., with the Securities and Exchange commission Thursday. The plans, however, were understood to be subject to change if the market outlook is unfavorable at the time.

Glore, Forgan & Co. will head the group underwriting the offering, which represents about 83 per cent of the Libby stock capitalization. The stock is now selling at about $7 a share.

The sale will be in compliance with a consent decree entered in the federal court of the District of Columbia whereby Swift & Co. was, in effect, enjoined from owning any of the capital stock of the company. Sale of the stock was originally planned for last spring, but the May decline in the stock market intervened, and extensions were granted.

BUSINESS LOANS OF CONTINENTAL BANK MOUNTING

Chairman Reports to Stockholders.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, told shareholders at the annual meeting yesterday that the upward trend in bank loans, mentioned recently in the bank's annual statement, is continuing this year. He said the larger part of the increase resulted from defense activity.

Chauncey B. Borland rejoins bank board.

Cummings disclosed that of the bank's gross earnings totaling $21,374,358 in 1940, $16,800,000 was derived from interest. In 1939 the bank earned $16,964,000 in interest. Federal deposit insurance cost the bank $1,040,000 in 1940, compared with $898,203 in 1939. The increase reflected the big rise in deposits which on Dec. 31, 1940, totaled $1,491,577,547.

Borland Joins Board.

Stockholders reëlected all directors and a new one, Chauncey B. Borland, member of an old Chicago family. Borland at one time was a director of the bank, but resigned in 1934. He is manager of the Borland properties, which include the Borland building at 105 South La Salle street.

Cummings announced that the directors had declared a semiannual dividend of $2 a share [totaling $3,000,000 on the 1,500,000 shares] payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 20. The bank has been on a $4 annual basis.

The only departure from routine at the meeting was a remark from a stockholder that he wished more money would be paid out in dividends and less added to surplus. Cummings said that with deposits rising the directors deemed it in the best interest of all that the surplus be built up. He added that the directors would consider what happens in 1941 before doing anything further about dividends.

Four New Vice Presidents.

At the conclusion of the stockholders meeting, directors made a number of promotions, including election of four vice presidents, Arthur W. Roberts, Richard A. Aishton, Charles Z. Henkle, and Ronald M. Kimball.

Roberts, who is in charge of the foreign department, was born in Peterboro, Ont., Aug. 22, 1892. He became connected with the Continental Illinois predecessor bank in 1921.

Aishton and Henkle were made vice presidents in the commercial banking department. Aishton was born in Eagle Grove, Ia., June 28, 1895. He has been with Continental since 1919.

Henkle was born in Chicago Aug. 16, 1892. He is the son of William H. Henkle, who was secretary of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank, one of the constituents in the Continental. He went with Illinois Trust in 1920.

Kimball was born in Norwich, Conn, April 27, 1895. He has been with Continental since 1924.

Other Promotions Made.

Other promotions included: commercial department, Paul M. Carrick, made a second vice president, Edward J. McGrath, New York representative, made a second vice president, Tilden Cummings and Merle Glanville, made assistant cashiers; savings department, Otto Koenig, assistant cashier.

In the trust department Kimball, who was secretary was succeeded as secretary by Allan B. Hussander; Byron Bronston, Charles G. Sedgwick, and Edmond B. Stofft, trust officers, were made second vice presidents and Clair W. Furlong was made a trust officer. J. H. Leslie, Carlyle E. Wakefield and Harold L. Weis were appointed assistant secretaries. Melville A. Powell was appointed an assistant cashier in the foreign department.

FIDELITY ASSN. CHANGES OVER TO INSURANCE

Fidelity Investment association, Wheeling, W. Va., has been converted into a life insurance company, the Fidelity Assurance association, it was learned yesterday. The association has been engaged in selling instalment savings contracts. The reorganization culminated efforts to readust the business to conform with recent changes in Illinois laws and with the new federal investment company act, it was said.

If the association had continued to sell annuity contracts on the instalment plan under its former organization, it would have had to register with the Securities and Exchange commission as an investment company and comply with the various regulations covering the sale and issuance of such contracts.

AUTO WORKERS, INT. HARVESTER SETTLE STRIKE

A contract was signed yesterday between the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers and the International Harvester company to bring an end to the strike at the company's Fort Wayne, Ind., truck works. It was announced that 3,500 employés would go back to work Monday.

The strike was called Dec. 31 when the union made additional demands after negotiating with the company since last May.

G. E. CHIEF SAYS INDUSTRY SEEKS NO WAR PROFITS

Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric company, asserted last night that American business was not tackling the defense work as a source of additional profits, but rather as a necessary undertaking for the welfare of the country.

He spoke before some 300 utility executives at a midwestern sales conference in the Stevens hotel.

"The desire for profits must be subordinated," he said. "I believe that all that industry has asked or will ask in the future is to be allowed to carry out the tremendous task of furnishing the essential quantities of defense materials with only a minimum of profit, or at least without a loss."

Auto Production Sets New Peak for Any January Week

COTTON

Persistent buying of cotton futures attributed to mills and purchases by foreign interests more than offset hedging sales and a majority of the active deliveries sold at new seasonal high prices. Closing sales were at gains of .03 to .11 cents a pound, with the new crop months leading.

Cash cotton closed .02 to .06 cent higher, with New York, 10.63 cents; New Orleans, 10.34 cents; Galveston, 10.14 cents, and Houston at 10.11 cents a pound. Futures prices follow:

RAIL BOND BULL MARKET MOVES TO NEW HEIGHTS

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The bull market in rail bonds swept on to new heights today on a volume which traders said was exceptional for recent years.

Recording its sixth consecutive rise, the Associated Press rail index closed at 63.8, up .4 of a point and a new 1940-41 high.

Industrial and utility loans were steady.

Total volume in all groups was $18,803,150 face value, the second largest since Cept. 27, 1939.

United States Government loans came back a little more in a rally which started yesterday after Secretary Morgenthau said the recent decline had been unwarranted.

Foreign loans were mixed in a generally small market.

COPPER, 5 OTHER EXPORTS UNDER LICENSE RULE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation placing copper, brass, bronze, zinc, nickel, and potash under the government's export licensing system. This means that none of these materials can be exported without a license, the move being taken to conserve them for the national defense program.

The new control over these materials will become effective on Feb. 3, and will enable the administration to impose an embargo on shipments to any country. Prior to today's proclamation there were about 60 different items, finished articles and raw materials, subject to the licensing system, including machine tools, aluminum, rubber, tungsten, plastics, iron, and steel.

CHICAGO STOCK BOARD CANCELS 32 MEMBERSHIPS

The Chicago Stock exchange since Dec. 6 has purchased for $1,500 each and canceled 32 memberships, the limit permitted under the constitution, officials disclosed yesterday. These sales reduced to 300 the total membership of the exchange.

The finance committee had made the offer on Dec. 6 to purchase the 32 and had set Jan. 15 as the deadline. From February, 1932, to Dec. 6, 1940, 138 memberships were purchased and cancelled, according to Paul B. Skinner, chairman of the finance committee. The total cost of these was $311,950, or an average price of $2,260.50.

The constitution provides that the membership shall not be increased except by amendment.

Rails Are Unable to Keep Up Early Steam.

Rails, well out in front in the forenoon in lively dealings, backed down to a narrow range at the last and steels canceled early advances. Utilities, rubbers, oils, and specialties did fairly well altho top gains were shaded at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 45. It was the seventh consecutive session in which this composite has been up or unchanged.

Many Take Their Profits.

Many customers with fair sized profits on the lengthy upturn cashed in part of their commitments for safety's sake over the week-end. Recovery sentiment still predominated, however.

Railway securities still were buoyed by the outlook for mounting operating revenues and the likelihood most roads would escape excess profit taxes.

Louisville and Nashville shares went into new high ground for 1940-'41, but finished unchanged.

General Motors was up ⅛ and Chrysler unchanged. Declines were made by Bethlehem and Republic Steels, du Pont, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, and J. I. Case.

Chicago Stocks.

Fractional advances dominated on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 26,000 shares. Four issues established 1940-'41 price peaks. They were Kentucky Utilities junior preferred at 50½, up ½; Rath Packing at 57¾, up 4¾; Yates American Machine at 5½, up ¼, and Eversharp at 2¾, up ⅛.

BRITISH HOLDINGS IN U. S. 7 BILLION AT START OF WAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10 [Special].—The British empire had $7,115,000,000 of gold and dollar resources in the United States at the outbreak of the war, and in the intervening 16 months only a small part of this has been converted into cash, the federal reserve board reported today.

Emphasis should be placed, the federal reserve board said, less on the extent of British resources than on "the difficulties of realizing within a short period the full cash value indicated for security holdings." Furthermore, the resources still in British hands are subject to commitments that have been incurred on the great mass of orders placed, but not yet paid for.

Lists Empire's Holdings.

The report listed British empire gold holdings at the end of August, 1939, at $2,735,000,000; investments in American marketable securities, $1,575,000,000; investments in British controled enterprises in the United States, $1,330,000,000; dollar balances, $1,050,000,000; miscellaneous investments, $425,000,000.

Since the war began, according to the report, the British empire also has produced about $1,100,000,000 worth of gold and sold $1,400,000,000 of goods to the United States.

Drafts upon the aggregate of these gold and dollar resources have been made to pay for $2,600,000,000 worth of goods already delivered by the United States, and to cover substantial withdrawals of capital from England as well as for other purposes.

Big Blocks Are Sold.

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—Additional blocks of stock out of British holdings of American securities, worth nearly $1,500,000 at current market prices, were distributed today to investors by Wall street firms.

Quickly sold after the close of the stock exchange, dealers disclosed, was a block of 47,000 common shares of Pacific Gas & Electric, worth around $1,350,000 at the going market price of about $29 a share. The stock was distributed by Blyth & Co., Inc.

AMERICAN CYANAMID.

I have read so much about the strategic position of the chemical industry that I have been considering investing some money in a chemical stock. Kindly send me a report on American Cyanamid.—W. H.

Answer: American Cyanamid company and subsidiaries manufacture a diversified line of chemicals used in industry, mining, and agriculture. The company's main plant is at Niagara Falls, Canada, and its office is in New York City.

Exploration by the company of new fields has contributed to its steady uptrend in earnings, which faltered only in 1938. Net income in 1940 exceeded the previous peak reached in 1939, it was estimated. For the first nine months of 1940 net income rose to $4,403,403, equal to $1.61 a common share, from $3,339,437, or $1.25 a common share, in the corresponding period of 1939.

1938	$4,062,160	$1.61	$ .55
1937	4,454,831	1.77	1.00
1936	5,268,258	2.09	1.60
1935	2,452,912	.91	.45

Besides $12,024,000 in funded debt, the company has outstanding 861,273 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $10 par value, 65,943 shares of class A and 2,552,426 shares of class B common stock of $10 par value. The class A and B common stocks are identical except that the latter has no voting rights.

Regular dividends are being paid on the preferred shares. In 1940 the company paid 60 cents a share on the class A and B stocks and a $1.50 stock dividend in the form of 5 per cent preferred stock at the rate of one share of preferred for every six and two-thirds shares of common stock held. A cash payment of 15 cents a common share was made last Jan. 2.

WARNER BROTHERS.

About how many theaters are there in the Warner Bros. chain?—B. W.

KENDALL COMPANY.

How much did the Kendall company pay on its common stock in 1940? —O. D.
